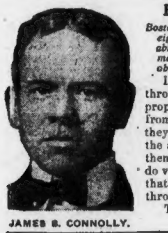
Sims Decried Valor of U. S., Says Connolly



JAMES B. CONNOLLY.

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY,

Boston's noted writer of sea tales, who spent eight months with the American naval forces abroad during the Great War and whose comments on Admiral Sims are based on personal observation.

Late dispatches from Washington are throwing a little more light on the British propaganda of Admiral Sims. We have it from one of our Congressmen that when they met Sims in Paris in October, 1918, the armistice pending at the time, he told them that not only did the American navy do very little toward winning the war, but that the American army failed to come through in the final drive.

Too bad, isn't it, because, of course,

OIL PRICE BOOSTED ON CITY

Agent Scullin Admits He Charged 9.9 Cents for Same Grade He Sold at 8.45

Matthew P. Scullin informed the Finance Commission today that in 1919 he charged the city 9.9 cents a gallon for thousands of gallons of road oil which cost him no more than the grade he usually supplied at 8.45 cents.

The contractor's admission was made after experts had declared that there was in reality no difference in the quality of the oils, and that the city had been victimized to the extent of thousands of dollars.

The city purchased thirty-seven carloads of the "higher grade" oil at 9.9 cents, each car containing about 8,000 gallons. The difference of more than a cent a gallon represented many thousands of dollars, which

'DID NOT CALL HER A SPY'

Feared Mrs. Freeman's Name Would Be Linked With Benner's in German Propaganda

Ernest B. Freeman, manager of the Sturtevant Blower Works, testified today in his wife's divorce case that he had informed her the late Dr. Herbert O. Benner of Framingham had been investigated as a German sympathizer.

The statement was made, he said, when Mrs. Freeman demanded an apology from him, in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cobb and Mr. Rising, for calling her a German propagandist and spy with Dr. Benner.

Freeman said he told his wife he had never accused her of being a spy, but he feared she would become involved with Benner.

He said at the same time he accused Mrs. Cobb of alienating his wife's affections by taking her to see the physician.

DECLINED TO APOLOGIZE.

Mrs. Cobb's only reason, Freeman said, for taking such action, was to obtain the use of Mrs. Freeman's car and have Mr. Freeman pay her theatre bills.

When Mrs. Freeman asked for an apology the witness said he replied "If I had done anything to justify an apology I would make one. I never accused you of being a German sympathizer, but I have known for some time that Dr. Benner was under investigation and I feared you might become involved."

At the conclusion of this gathering Freeman said, his wife promised to have no further communication with Dr. Benner, even in cipher.

Four weeks later, after the detectives

U. S. Seizes Millions in Stamp Raids

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 29.—In country-wide raids on offices of "bond brokers" developments at the Treasury today showed several million dollars worth of war savings stamps and stolen Liberty Bonds have been seized and nearly 100 men and numerous women accomplices have been arrested.

Secret Service Chief John Moran reviewing the results of the roundup today, said he was convinced the dragnet had caught the ring leaders in a gigantic scheme, that would have served to defeat the treasury's drive to benefit legitimate investors.

Chief among the offenders are alleged "brokers" styled as "fencers" by treasury experts, through whom vast quantities of war savings stamps have been [illegible] and [illegible] which channels large amounts of stolen Liberty Bonds, previously recorded as stolen, have been traced.

The raids have occupied the attention of the treasury agents chiefly in such cities as New York, Chicago, Springfield, Ill., St. Louis, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Treasury officials explained that a large proportion of the war stamps were seized under the law which prohibits any individual from possessing more than $1,000 worth. The finding of larger amounts on premises of "brokers" constituted prima facie proof of guilt. In practically all cases, however, other proof had been obtained, including the making of fraudulent affidavits sworn to by the brokers as a means of cashing in stamps at postoffices.

The raids also resulted in the recovery of huge amounts of Liberty Bonds, stolen at different periods, which eventually found their way to the brokerage "fences."

276 NEW CASES OF INFLUENZA

Report for Day Shows Falling Off of 76 in Boston: Five Deaths Recorded

Influenza cases in Boston during the last twenty-four hours totalled 276, a falling off of 76 from yesterday. The five deaths reported in the same period were the largest number in any one day since the epidemic began.

There was a slight decrease in the number of cases in the State today. For the twenty-four hours ending at noon, 770 cases had been reported, which included 276 in Boston, Pittsfield had 39, Worcester 37, Somerville 24, Everett 21, Revere 20, Cambridge 15, Haverhill 14, Waltham 12 and Newton 10.

To aid the regular inspection force, Dr. Jeremiah J. Donovan of No. 712 Dudley street, was made temporary medical inspector in the health department at a salary of $1,200 per year, effective today.

Inspector Donovan will visit the homes in which influenza cases are reported to see if isolation is complete and if hospital treatment is necessary.

Six deaths from pneumonia were reported today and twenty-four new cases. The record of a year ago today was fourteen deaths from influenza and ten from pneumonia, showing that the present form of the disease is much less virulent. There were then reported ninety-five cases of influenza and fifteen of pneumonia.

FISH SHIPS CAN'T BUY IN CANADA

U. S. Masters Are Warned That Law Breakers Are to Be Punished

Masters of fishing vessels were notified by the Custom House authorities today that the law relative to buying supplies at Canadian or other foreign ports would be strictly enforced.

Two skippers who had been fined $100 each for failure to comply with the law were forgiven and their fines remitted, because innocence of any intended infraction of the law. Deputy Collector D. Perry said that the law enforcement had no bearing on the prevention of whiskey smuggling. He said that the buying supplies at a foreign port comes under the "touching and trading" clause of the customs laws and that unless a license was secured under the clause vessels could not "touch and trade" at Canadian ports.

Fishing masters say that the regulation will be a great hardship for skippers of vessels fishing on the "Cape Shore" grounds, off Nova Scotia. It has been the practice for vessels running out of provisions to put into some Nova Scotia port. Vessels often run into these ports to ride out Winter storms and have to remain for some time. Under the law they can put into foreign ports for shelter, but must not buy provisions unless they have licenses obtained before leaving port.

REGIONAL DIRECTOR IN CHARGE

Hines' New England Deputy Starts Investigation of Freight Strike

The United States Railroad Administration today began an investigation of the strike of 2,000 freight handlers and longshoremen employed by the Boston & Maine and Boston & Albany railroads.

Director-General Hines is away from Washington, but in his absence the probe is being carried out under the direction of the regional director for New England.

The investigation, according to information from Washington, follows an appeal from New England business men and union officials who fear that industry in this section of the country will be paralyzed if the strike is allowed to continue.

An attempt by the Boston & Maine to hire strikebreakers to take the places of the striking workers has so far been a failure. Today the road advertised for help in the Bos-

TRAPPED IN EVERETT HOUSE

Little Ones Set Fire to Bed While Mother Is Away, With Fatal Result

Three children, the oldest five years, died in the Whidden Memorial Hospital today as a result of being overcome by smoke in a fire which they set with matches when left alone in a room by their mother.

The infants were Clifton, five, Raymund, four, and Frederick, two, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Crowell of No. 248 Shute street, Everett.

Mystery surrounds the circumstances connected with the starting of the fire, as police, firemen and neighbors tell conflicting stories of what happened.

According to the firemen, Mrs. Crowell locked the children in a front bedroom while she went to call on a neighbor. The little ones, who were playing in bed, set fire to the mattress. The woman, returning from her call, saw smoke coming from the house, and instead of entering ran to a nearby store and telephoned the fire department.

FINDS CHILDREN IN CLOSET.

Fireman Paul Pettengill was the first to reach the scene, and he forced the door of the room. Entering he stumbled over the unconscious form of one child, and found the two others, in a state of coma, in a closet of the room. The neighbors corroborate this story.

The police, on the other hand, said that the woman was in the house, but had shut the children into the room while she was engaged in housework elsewhere. They say that she smelled smoke, and running to the room opened the door. Failing to see the children, the police say Mrs. Crowell ran downstairs to telephone.

USE PULMOTORS IN VAIN.

Four physicians were summoned, and the children removed to a house next door. The pulmotors of the police departments of Everett, Malden and Chelsea were secured, and the doctors worked for nearly an hour over the children without success.

They then ordered their removal to the hospital, where all three passed away a short time later.

PLAN TO DIVERT BIG STEAMSHIPS IF FREIGHT STRIKE CONTINUES

BOSTON MAY LOSE CARGOES FROM FOREIGN PORTS

newspapers but up to noon not single application had been received.

An embargo on all freight to and from the Boston and Maine and Boston and Albany terminals and all freight going through the city that would need handling by the two railroads in question was declared following the walkout of the men.

Today every freight handler employed by the New Haven went to work as usual. As yet that road has not felt the effects of the strike, although labor men say that the employes may walk out at any hour. Officials of that road declared an embargo would be clapped on as soon as the men walked out.

COFFEE
the Indispensable Drink!

Pointing out that a prolonged strike would cause a serious curtailment of business activity throughout New England, throwing out of work thousands of employes, industrial leaders and business men in general were bending every effort to secure a settlement of the wage demands made by the men.

Ten large steamers due here from overseas will be diverted to other ports, steamship officials declare, if the strike continues. Large quantities of perishable freight are also bound here by rail, which will be a total loss if it cannot be removed from the cars.

Providence Believes Strike Will End Soon

Providence, Jan. 29.—Railroad officials here expect the freight handlers' strike in Boston will be settled soon.

"At present we are going along as usual with our cars to the ground," said a New Haven official. Union leaders say they are willing to assist the strikers if called upon. Manufacturers and merchants say they have no fear of this city being affected by the strike.

Worcester Freight for Boston Not Held Up

Worcester, Jan. 29.—Worcester is not yet affected by the strike of union freight handlers in Boston. Local offices will continue to accept freight for Boston and points beyond until further orders.

Worcester is hard hit, however, by an embargo on shipments west of the Hudson river in effect on all three railroads entering here. It is a serious handicap to local manufacturers who ship 125 cars to western points daily. Plans are being made to keep freight in the local yards as long as possible in the hope that the embargo, caused by bad weather, may soon be lifted. Production will be curtailed only as a last resort.

Partial Embargo on B. & A. in Springfield

Springfield, Jan. 29.—Little fear that freight handlers here will join the Boston strikers is expressed by officials of the three railroads entering this city. It is said the men here are satisfied with the present schedule. In rush periods there are close to 200 freight handlers working in this city, but at present there are less than 150. The Boston & Albany has ordered an embargo here on freight for Boston. The embargo applies only to less than carload lots.

B. & M. Refuses Lowell Freight for Boston

Lowell, Jan. 29.—The Lowell Branch of the Boston & Maine today refused to accept freight for Boston, owing to the freight handlers' strike there. Shipments to Lowell from Boston were comparatively small today. There is no talk of an extension of the strike to Lowell, though it is thought such a development might come in the event of prolonged idleness in Boston. There are sixty freight handlers employed in the Lowell branch of the Boston & Maine.

Brockton Freight Uninterrupted

Brockton, Jan. 29.—The freight handlers' strike in Boston will not seriously affect this city. Freight Agent H. R. Bushnell said Brockton's food supply will continue without interruption as practically all of it comes from the West and is not handled in Boston. The shipment of shoes out of the city will not be interrupted, as more than 75 per cent are taken to shipping points in automobile trucks.

Fitchburg Merchants to Get Freight by Auto

Fitchburg, Jan. 29.—Local officials of the Boston & Maine have been ordered to refuse all freight requiring handling in Boston. Many concerns in this city that were expecting shipments of raw materials by way of Boston are affected by the freight handlers' strike. Many merchants that receive supplies from Boston are planning to send auto trucks for them.

Haverhill Foodstuffs May Be Held Up

Haverhill, Jan. 29.—The strike of freight handlers in Boston has not materially affected business in this city, although if it is prolonged shipments of many classes of foodstuffs for local consumption will be held up. Beef shipments for this city come direct from the West. General Agent Allen Goselyn of the Boston & Maine says the local freight handlers are not affiliated with the strikers, being members of the Station Employes' Association, composed of employes on the various divisions of the Boston & Maine.

Lynn Manufacturers Fear Effects of Strike

Lynn manufacturers and officials of the General Electric Company expressed alarm today over the strike of Boston freight handlers whose action they say may paralyze industry in the city. Most of the material used in Lynn factories comes through Boston, and more than 90 per cent. of the finished product of Lynn factories is shipped by way of Boston to all parts of the world.

Two Cars a Day May Be Held Up at Fall River

Fall River, Jan. 29.—The Boston freight strike will not affect more than 10 per cent. of the shipping of this city, according to freight officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford road. The embargo was declared today to be preventing the shipment of an average of two cars of freight a day to Boston.

Practically all shipments consist of cotton goods. Mill men said today their business was so far unaffected and that they would run as usual unless a more complete tieup should come.

Cheek Plumes Are Latest Paris Fad

Paris, Jan. 28.—Cheek plumes are the latest thing in feminine adornment here. They are ordinarily worn with the hat, but certain devotees of originality in dress have conceived the idea of wearing one or two "cheek plumes" with evening dress as earrings.

The cheek plume is an ostrich tip or bird-of-paradise spray loosely attached to the headband of the hat by a silken cord or chain of platinum. It falls straight down, close to the face, covering ear and cheek, and sweeping across the shoulder. It is invariably dyed a brilliant hue.

GIRL'S ASSAILANT FINED AND JAILED AS DRUNK

James Sargento, arrested with two other men, who were charged with assault on Patrolman William F. MacDonald, was sentenced to six months in jail in East Boston court today on a drunk charge. He was also fined $15 for assaulting a girl. The fine was assessed in December, 1917, but Sargento defaulted. Catello Ciaccia and Benjamin Pepo, charged with assaulting MacDonald, were remanded till Friday.

The full bench of the Supreme Court has decided that Simon Swig, Edward L. McManus, Robert Luce and Louis Goldstein, officers of the National Realty Company, are not personally liable on a note for $2,500 given on January 9, 1915, and made payable to Forrest N. Adams. It is held that the note is that of the Realty Company and not that of the defendants.

The Jugo-Slavs contend that they do not know the contents of the compact.

INFLUENZA CASES IN CAMBRIDGE DECREASE

According to advices, Lieutenants Davis and Grimes became confused during a fog and followed the Solado River in the belief that they were proceeding up the Rio Grande. Word from the aviators said they expected to obtain their release today.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC SPREADS OVER FRANCE

Paris, Jan. 29.—The influenza epidemic is growing. The medical authorities are taking vigorous measures to stem it. They view with alarm the spread of the epidemic in America. "We are not scientifically acquainted with the virus and we cannot close our frontiers to the epidemic." Influenza is sweeping the prisons.

TELLS OF PROFIT IN OIL SALES

Agent Scullin Admits Making City Pay Extra Price for Low Grade

counsel for the Finance Commission argue was criminally wasted.

Scullin was questioned at length concerning his withdrawal of large sums from his private account in the National Shawmut Bank shortly after he began supplying the city with his product at 9.3 cents.

Attorney Sullivan for Scullin objected to this line of testimony, saying it seemed to intimate that Scullin was suspected of bribing city officials. He pointed out that the money was withdrawn before Scullin received his pay from the city.

Attorney Hodge for the commission answered that it was also withdrawn just after Scullin began his dealing with the city on a big scale.

The contractor was questioned as to his intimacy with city officials. He said he knew former Superintendent of Supplies Dawson, Commissioner of Public Works Sullivan and Division Engineer Murphy, but not Mayor Peters.

Former Superintendent of Supplies Thomas J. Dawson, deposed for his part in the road oil deal, has admitted ordering the "higher priced" product, which was not higher grade.

ADVISED BY MURPHY.

Commissioner of Public Works Thomas F. Sullivan admitted suggesting to Superintendent Dawson that he purchase the higher priced oil. He said he did this on the recommendation of Division Engineer Edward F. Murphy of his department.

Murphy has assumed all responsibility for the purchase of the "higher grade" product, maintaining that his recommendation was made after he saw both grades tried and found the more expensive the better for the purposes of the city.

Mr. Scullin is twenty-nine years old and does business as the American Oil Products Company. He testified in March of last year he contracted with Mr. Dawson, then superintendent of supplies, to furnish five carloads of oil at 8.4½ cents a gallon. The five cars were delivered, but among them was one containing the "higher grade" oil, at 9.3 cents. Scullin said he sent this car as a sample, in case the city wished to pay more for a better quality oil.

At that time, he testified, he did not know exactly what the two grades cost him, but found out shortly afterward that they cost the same. After that, he said, he furnished Boston with the thirty-seven carload lots under discussion all at the increased price.

Attorney Robert G. Dodge, for the Finance Commission, asked the witness if he knew Mr. Dawson well.

"Not very well," answered Mr. Scullin.

"Well enough to write him a letter addressed as 'Dear Tom,' and sign yourself 'Matt,' suggested the attorney, producing the letter.

MADE OWN SPECIFICATIONS.

Mr. Scullin admitted that he did. He said he had no knowledge of anybody "getting anything" out of the road oil deal. The specifications for the two "grades" of oil at different prices, he said, he made up himself.

Inspector Dillon of the street oiling department corroborated the testimony yesterday of General Foreman Watson of the street oiling department, in which Watson contradicted Division Engineer Murphy on important points.

Watson had declared that Murphy did not recommend the higher grade of oil after seeing both grades tried, as the 9.3 cents product was not laid on the streets until orders had been given for more.

He further said that in a car which the American Oil Products Company shipped as contained 9,000 gallons he found only 9,000 gallons. He admitted that other inspectors might have worked on the car, and to clear up the matter Chief Clerk William E. Bennett of the street oiling service was called.

Bennett stated that Dillon was the only inspector working on oil at the time referred to, and that his testimony was final.

PROTEST CLOSING OF FERRY

East Boston Citizens Call Mass Meeting as Traffic Is Diverted

Public Works Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan today issued an order barring all motor vehicles from the North Ferry to East Boston while the South Ferry is out of commission. This will necessitate autos and motor trucks going to East Boston through Charlestown and Chelsea.

It will leave the North Ferry free for horse-drawn traffic. Commissioner Sullivan gave the necessity of relieving traffic congestion at the North Ferry as his reason for the order.

The South Ferry to East Boston, discontinued suddenly last night, may resume service tomorrow with one boat, it was stated today. Meanwhile all vehicles are using the North Ferry and passengers the North Ferry and the tunnel.

Residents of East Boston, however, are wondering what would occur if a serious fire broke out in their district. Boston apparatus responds to all plural alarms in East Boston. The apparatus usually is taken across the harbor on the South and North Ferries, four boats being available. Even under normal conditions it is twenty minutes before the first Boston apparatus reaches East Boston.

With the South Ferry out of commission, East Boston residents point out, only part of the apparatus could be taken on the two boats of the North Ferry. The streets of Charlestown and Chelsea are in such condition that it would be a long trip, indeed, by land.

CITIZENS PROTEST.

Aroused by the discontinuance of the ferry, East Boston residents have called a mass meeting in the East Boston High School for Saturday night to discuss the unexpected action of the ferry division in shutting down the ferry at 10 o'clock last night "until further notice." A citizens' committee has been formed, headed by Representative Niland, to investigate the matter.

Commissioner of Public Works Thomas F. Sullivan explained today that "until further notice" might mean today. He explained the cutting off of the ferry by saying that traffic on the North Ferry was so heavy that it required all available boats to handle it.

The ferry John H. Sullivan is being reconstructed, the ferry Governor Russell is under inspection, the ferry Saddle Island has been condemned, the General Hancock goes under inspection today. This leaves but two ferries, the Hugh O'Brien and the General Sumner, which are being used to keep the North Ferry going.

Patrons of the South Ferry claim they first learned of the discontinuance of service when they tried to get home last night, and found notices to the effect that the ferry had shut down. Commissioner Sullivan said instructions were issued to post such notices in Lewis street and Maverick square, East Boston, and at the ferry on Atlantic avenue, yesterday afternoon.

Reed of Missouri and Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts will speak against the covenant. EBERT SCARED BY PLOTTERS

President of German Republic Waits for Chance to Quit Post

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
Boston American Staff Correspondent.
Special Radio Dispatch.

Berlin, Jan. 29.—Haunted by the spectre of a Red revolution on the one hand and that of counter-revolution by the irreconcilable monarchists on the other, his homo fenced in by barbed wire entanglements and armed guards posted in front and rear, Friedrich Ebert is said to be weary of his job as president of the German Republic.

Notwithstanding the peevish and indignant denials of Wilhelmstrasse, whenever this is suggested, reports, said to emanate from his personal friends, are persistently circulated, to the effect that he is anxiously looking forward to the day when he can step out and become a private citizen again.

Ebert is not a rugged character. He is extremely sensitive and suffers under criticism, of which a great deal is constantly directed against him. He is also said to be disappointed at having found it necessary to resort to militaristic and repressive measures of the old regime, which are contrary to his principles.

SENTENCED FOR STEALING 'SON'

Accused Man's Claim That He Was Father Not Admitted by Mother

Worcester, Jan. 29.— Robert M. Ostlund of Fitchburg was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for kidnaping the boy of Hilma Laine, a Fitchburg mill worker.

Ostlund, who said he was the father of the five-year-old boy, told the court that the mother had refused to marry him because she had "the same idea as Emma Goldman."

According to the police Ostlund took the child from its mother twice, the first time the boy being recovered by the Laine woman in New York. On the second occasion, the boy, Tutti, was taken by the Children's Society of Brooklyn, which found him in a tenement. He is in the custody of the Children's Society.

The woman on the witness stand declined to admit that Ostlund was the father of her child. "I have my reasons," she declared.

Ostlund said the boy was born while he was living with the Laine woman in New York. He said he learned of her anarchistic views after the birth of the child. Then he left her, he said, but refused to give his duty to support the infant. He said he wanted the boy to have a father's care.

Settles $50,000 Love Suit for $3,625

Miss Mary L. Phipps, who has returned love letters.

Hackensack, N. J., Jan. 29.—The $50,000 suit for breach of promise brought by Miss Mary Lillian Phipps, Teaneck society bud and descendant of Sir William Phipps, first royal Governor of Massachusetts, against William Russell Smith, drygoods merchant and Sunday school teacher, was compromised in the Circuit Court for $3,625.

Miss Phipps had presented some forty ardent love letters from Smith in support of her claim for damages. One of these missives read:

"Sweetheart: Do the birds tell you I love you? Do the flowers through their beauty tell you I love you? Then, why did I make a happy place for you, I want your love, I most perfectly lived the lives of Ralnad Bronte characters Rabinel and Louis Lambert. I lived a vicious life. Dissipated and died by inches alternately in the most glorious and most wretched manner possible."

Miss Phipps said Smith broke their engagement by telephoning: "I'm through with you Lillian. You told friends of mine I was a greenhorn and a boob."

It is understood that Miss Phipps returned all of Smith's letters in return for the payment arranged in court.

Hamby Dies Tonight With Life Secret

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Although Gordon Fawcett Hamby, iron-nerved bank robber, murderer and prisoner of mystery, walked in the shadow of death today, he was cheerful and gave no signs of breaking down.

Unless a last-minute reprieve comes Hamby will be electrocuted after 11 o'clock tonight for the murder of two bank clerks in Brooklyn.

A dispatch from Albany says a request for a reprieve was made today to Governor Smith by Nellie Bly, famous New York newspaper woman. Miss Bly conferred with the Governor, but the latter declined to say whether he would interfere.

Watchers in the death house said that Hamby had slept amazingly well for a man who was spending his last night on earth. He is the most remarkable prisoner that Sing Sing has ever had. He declared that he would go to his death "on time" without revealing the secret of his life. He is only twenty-six years old. Hamby coolly told the prison officials that he had planned to kill himself, but had decided to "commit legal suicide." "You treated me squarely, warden, and were such a good fellow that I decided to let the law take its course," said the condemned man.

Hamby is reported to have broken silence and denied that he was even in Brooklyn when the bank clerks of the East Brooklyn Savings Bank were shot to death on December 13, 1918. However, he reiterated he wanted to die rather than face a life term for other crimes.

Hamby's remarkable nerve was shown again when he was asked what he wanted for breakfast. He smiled as he replied: "Oh, give me the regular condemned man's breakfast. They all eat ham and eggs, don't they?"

During the past few days in the death house Hamby has been amusing himself with an outfit board and a phonograph, his favorite piece of music being the "Marseillaise."

He was an inveterate cigarette smoker, but when his supply of tobacco was exhausted he refused to sign the name "Hamby" to an order on his small supply of funds to buy more. He declared it was not his right name, and he would use it no more.

Hamby, arrested in Tacoma, Wash., in June, 1919, made a confession, saying he had committed robberies "in every country of consequence on the face of the globe, but had never tackled a job unless there were five figures in it."

The request Hamby made to the court was that the certificate of his death sentence be made out read "Jay R. Allen" instead of Gordon Fawcett Hamby. Medical men who have examined Hamby say that he is sane.

Pretty Teacher Did Not Intend to Kill Liddle, Her Attorney Declares

By International News Service.

Methuen, N. J., Jan. 29.—Miss Frances F. Johnson, pretty young school teacher, who is at liberty on $1,500 bond on the charge of carrying a deadly weapon, had no intention of killing her former sweetheart, Clarence Liddle, because he was alleged to have wronged her, but planned to commit suicide in his presence, according to a statement today by her attorney, Franklyn M. The case will come up before the Middlesex County Grand Jury tomorrow. Miss Johnson is now in Hartford, Ct., at the home of her father.

"Miss Johnson was suffering intense anguish as a result of the harsh treatment she had received from her former suitor and had decided to try to effect a reconciliation," said Mr. Ritchie. WEIRD SIGNALS HEARD BY AIR

Possible Mars May Be Trying to Talk to Us, Says Marconi

By GUGLIELMO MARCONI.
(Inventor of the Wireless.)

Special Cable Dispatch to Universal Service.

London, Jan. 29.—Are we again on the verge of an age of miracles? Is the moon, Mars, or some other presumably inhabited planet, desperately attempting to speak to this world of ours?

I should be a bold speculator were I to declare positively that one or more of the planets are attempting to send us some kind of a message, but it is equally futile to deny such a thing is possible, in view of our incomplete knowledge of such a profound subject.

What is certain is that wireless stations are periodically receiving weird signals of uncertain import and indefinite origin.

Obviously, since Mars is situated somewhere near in the inter-planetary space, the source of such signals might be there—in some other planet.

At the same time, we must not overlook the fact that the possible seat of these signals may be the sun, where, as is well known, electrical disturbances occur.

Perhaps it may aid the inquiry if I say that we do not get the signals unless we establish a minimum of a sixty-five-mile wave length. They "come in" on that length, but when they occur they are very persistent.

The most familiar signal received is curiously musical. It comes in the form of three short raps, which may be interpreted as Morse letter "s." But there are sounds which may stand for other letters.

Red Cross Woman Going to Geneva

MRS. WILLIAM K. DRAPER.

A woman has been chosen as one of the five delegates from the United States to the meeting of the general council of the Red Cross at Geneva, Switzerland, March 2. She is Mrs. William K. Draper of New York, well-known all over the country for her activities in connection with Red Cross work.

500 STRIKE IN SHOE FACTORY

West Manchester, N. H., Workers Demand 10 Per Cent. Increase

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 29.—A general strike has been declared in the George R. Jones shoe factory, West Manchester. Five hundred employes quit work at the call of William Fisher, agent of the Allied Shoe Workers' Union, when, it is claimed, officials of the company refused to meet the demands for a general increase of 10 per cent. and an adjustment of the piece price scale.

It is said that both the officials of the company and the employes are firm and it is likely that the strike will be protracted causing an indefinite shutdown.

Hundreds of other employes are liable to be thrown out of work at both the Bryon and River factories of the McElwain Company, unless the vampers, who are now out on strike, accept the proposition to submit their difficulties to arbitration. The vampers are seeking an increase of from two to three cents per dozen.

Headmaster and Mrs. Raymond C. Laird of the Roxbury High School will be among the patrons of the reunion dance of the school's class of 1917, to be held at the Colonial Club, Forchester, February 13. The other teachers invited are Miss Charlotte W. Montgomery, Miss Mabel E. Warner, Miss Edith Parkhurst and Harold Judson Smith, instructor of accounting in the College of Business Administration of Boston University.

BRITISH VETS COMING TO CANADA IN SPRING

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 29.—Land hunger is turning the eyes of thousands of former British soldiers toward Canada and a tremendous exodus of these veterans of the imperial armies is expected to set toward the Canadian prairies in the Spring.

A large part of the Canadian government's land holdings in railways has been reserved for soldier settlement. This is on the theory that nothing is too good for the men who saved civilization in the war.

FRANKLIN SQUARE FUND NEAR $18,000

The Franklin Square House fund being raised through the efforts of the hundreds of young women at the house and a host of volunteer workers outside will reach $18,000 today, it was predicted by Miss Vera Chase in charge of the organization at the house. The total received up to this morning was $17,585.85.

TO SELL IRISH BONDS HERE

Roxbury Society Meets to Further Drive Which Opens February 21

Irish bond certificates will go on sale in Boston February 21, the eve of Washington's Birthday, according to members of the Robert Emmet branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom, who will hold a mass meeting to further the interests of the drive Sunday evening, February 8, in O'Connell Hall, Hibernian Building, Roxbury.

Prominent speakers will address the meeting, which will be attended by delegations from other branches of the organization in and about Boston. There is a marked disposition to help the sale of the Irish bonds by members of the Robert Emmet branch, and the coming meeting will take action towards their distribution in that section of the city.

CANVASS BEGINS FEBRUARY 21.

Although the actual canvass for the sale of the certificates will not be made in Boston and surrounding territory until on and after February 21, thousands of requests for them have already been handed in to officers of the various Irish organizations. The purpose of the sale of the Irish bond certificates is to raise a fund of $10,000,000 to carry on the work of the Irish Republic.

William P. Dwyer of Roxbury, director of the Robert Emmet branch, today declared that it is the intention of the members at the next meeting to see to it that every family of Irish birth or extraction in Roxbury gets one of these Irish bond certificates.

"We're going to strengthen the strong right arm of the Irish Republic," said Dwyer, "and we hope to have President De Valera with us at some future date to outline to the people of Boston the plans he has in mind for the use of the money secured by the sale of the certificates."

An energetic committee has charge of the arrangements for the meeting, comprising President Patrick J. Moylahan, Thomas Fallon, William P. Dwyer, Charles A. "Duffy, Arthur Hand, Margaret Connolly and Peter Conroy.

HIBERNIAN BALL.

Representatives of the various Irish organizations will this evening attend the annual ball and Irish night of Division No. 72, Ancient Order of Hibernians, in Faine Memorial Hall, No. 9 Appleton street.

Officers-elect of St. Joseph's Court, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, will be installed this evening at O'Connell Hall, Hibernian building, Roxbury.

A function of interest to the Central Council of Irish County Clubs is the ceremony to be held in O'Connell Hall, Hibernian building, Sunday evening, when the newly-elected board of governments of the Longford and Leitrim clubs will be installed. Speakers of note will tell of "Ireland's Future."

Patrick J. Neagle is chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration to be held in O'Connell Hall, Hibernian building, Wednesday evening, February 4, under the auspices of the Knights of St. Brendan.

February 13 is the date set for the reunion, conducted by the Ancient County Dublin Club. The affair will be held in Hibernian Hall, Dudley street, Roxbury.

COMMITTEE TO REPORT.

The committee in charge of the Irish night celebration to be held by the Kildare Association Monday evening in Corinthian Hall, Deacon building, No. 1661 Washington street, South End, will report at a special meeting Sunday afternoon.

In Deacon Hall, No. 1661 Washington street, this evening the officers-elect of the St. Brendan Society will be installed. A concert of Irish music and speaking will follow.

The monthly meeting of the Owen Roe O'Neill Branch, Friends of Irish Freedom, will be held at Fox Hall, Upham's Corner, Wednesday evening, February 4.

Prominent speakers will address the meeting and arrangements will be completed for the big membership drive meeting to be held at the William E. Russell School, Edward Everett square, during February. The majority of the members of this branch are from the parish of St. Margaret and St. William, and it is planned to make this one of the largest branches in the Metropolitan District.

Josie M. Arnold Estate

Josie M. Arnold of Waltham has asked to be appointed administratrix of the estate of her mother, Mrs. Mary A. Robinson of Waltham, who died December 23, 1919. The estate is valued at $10,000.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—Advertisement.

A Hovey Stocktaking

Means a general clearance of all small lots, discontinued lines of single garments, etc., at saving prices. Most every department in the store could not help but to accumulate some merchandise for this event. Every piece of merchandise, on sale Thursday and Friday, when originally purchased had to toe the mark of the Hovey requirements of value; therefore you are to participate in an event purchasing our small lots from our regular stock at greatly reduced prices.

This bulletin merely displays a few examples of the values possible here Thursday and Friday. Many more could not find room in this advertisement.

Some quantities are small, so we would therefore advise an early visit so as not to be disappointed.

COURTESY THE KEYNOTE OF SHEPARD SERVICE

FREEMAN WARNED HIS WIFE TO KEEP AWAY FROM DOCTOR BENNER

DENIES HE CALLED HER A SPY

Feared She Would Become Involved in Alleged German Propaganda

had been withdrawn, Freeman said, his wife again called on the physician.

Referring to testimony of Mrs. Freeman in which she accused him of breaking down a door, Freeman admitted that he did this but claimed extenuation. He said his daughter Sally was ill in the room and his wife would not allow him to enter.

FORCED THE DOOR.

He broke the lock with a pickaxe, he testified. Entering the room, he said to Mrs. Freeman: "I know you don't care for me, but I think Sally is dying." To which his wife replied he said: "Care for you? I don't give a ——— for you."

A declaration by Freeman that Dr. Benner and his wife had employed a secret code to communicate with each other even in his presence, caused a stir in the court room.

Q.—Had you ever heard of that before—of communication between them in cipher? A.—Never. It was absolutely new to me.

Q.—Had you any information regarding their correspondence in cipher? A.—Yes. It was my own observation of the letters written from Mrs. Freeman to Dr. Benner, in which she used an assumed name and used the number of a postoffice box instead of an address, and also my own observation of expressions and signs passing between my wife and the doctor in my presence, in his office.

"HAIR WAS DISARRANGED."

Mr. Freeman admitted that in his four-hour talk on the occasion of the Cobbs' visit to his home he spoke of Mrs. Freeman's "disgraceful" visits to Dr. Benner's office. The expression "disgraceful" was stricken from the records. Freeman said, "I told the Cobbs of the private postoffice box which my wife had at Mattapan at Hyde Park and of the doctor's private box. I told them she always dressed very carefully on the days she went to see Dr. Benner. The day I met her at the doctor's office, I told them, her hair had been carefully combed. I told them that when she returned from these visits her hair was disarranged."

LOCKED OUT OF HOUSE.

Freeman described at length an incident on June 13, 1918. "I told Mrs. Freeman," he said, "before Sally and Ruth, that she had again broken her promise not to see Dr. Benner, and that she had been to Oakdale that day and telephoned to Benner from Dedham. I told her that she must put a stop to this disgraceful acquaintance and must treat the children properly.

"She said I was the meanest man that ever lived, that Dr. Benner was so much better than I that there was no comparison, and that she didn't give a ——— about the children. I left the house.

"When I returned at 11 p. m. all the doors were locked. I called up to Ruth from under her window, and she let me in the rear door. During the time she was opening the door Mrs. Freeman came down. She said 'Ruth, didn't I tell you not to let your father in?' She was very angry."

Freeman testified that Mrs. Freeman promised to remain home with the children if he left the house. "As a matter of fact," he said, "that was the reason I left the house later and went to stay first at the B. A. A. and afterwards at the Copley-Plaza.

"I stated during my interview with the Cobbs," said Mr. Freeman, "that Dr. Benner and Mrs. Freeman corresponded constantly; that they had had telephone conversations together. At midnight the Cobbs rose to go. Mrs. Cobb and Mrs. Freeman went to the guest room."

Q.—What happened after that? A.—When Mrs. Cobb and Mrs. Freeman came downstairs Mrs. Freeman said, 'Ernest, I have something to say to you. I will never see Dr. Benner again.' I said, 'That is very good. I think you would write and tell him.' She said no, that she would not write him, that she would not communicate with him even in cipher.

Q.—And what was said after that? —Mr. Cobb said to me, "That ought be enough for you, Freeman. You ought to take off the detectives now."

Q.—Did you take off the detectives? —I did the next day.

(Mrs. Freeman's version of this incident was that the detectives shadowed her the following day with greater zeal than ever.)

HEARD OF WIFE'S VISIT.

Q.—How long after that before you had the detectives back on the job?

—Between six and seven weeks.

Q.—Had you a conversation about the 28th with Mrs. Cobb? A.—Yes, I had a conversation with her about that time and received information from her that Mrs. Freeman had not been Dr. Benner.

Q.—In June did you receive any other information? A.—Yes, but not from Mrs. Cobb. On June 22 I received information from Mr. Cobb that Mrs. Freeman was again in communication with Dr. Benner. Mr. Cobb told me that he knew that my wife had seen Dr. Benner at least once, because his wife and my wife were present at the time that she had gone to see Dr. Benner because I had threatened divorce proceedings, and that the interview lasted between twenty minutes and half an hour.

"GRABBED BY THE THROAT."

Q.—Did you see Mrs Freeman on September 3, 1917? A.—She entered the building at 2 Park square, where Benner's office was. It was 4:25 p. m. I noticed that she was very carefully dressed. At 5:35 she emerged. She appeared very excited and nervous. She was patting [illegible] and wiping her face with her handkerchief.

Freeman told of a dispute in the kitchen of the Hyde Park house, to which Mrs. Freeman had testified. He said: "Two of the children were feverish. It was at the height of the influenza period. I told Mrs. Freeman we must have a nurse. She said she didn't want a nurse just then. She went to the telephone. Through the extension phone I heard her call Mrs. Cobb and ask her to come over. I told Mrs. Freeman that I did not want Mrs. Cobb there.

"Without answering me she went into the kitchen and closed the door on me. I finally pushed it open. She was very angry, rushed at me and grabbed me by the throat, pushing me toward the butler's pantry."

"On July 27 we started for Bretton Woods in the car," Freeman said. "Mrs Freeman had refused to go with us. After we had reached a point about a mile from the house, I passed Dr. Benner, driving towards my home. While I was at Bretton Woods, I wrote Mrs. Freeman to come up there for the sake of the children. She did not come up, or answer the letter."

ADMITS SLAPPING WIFE.

A visit paid by his wife to Dr. Benner at the latter's residence in Framingham, while the doctor was dressed in pajamas and a bathrobe was testified to by Freeman. This was on Friday, March 31, 1919, he said.

Freeman admitted that he had slapped his wife on the face, during the two and one half years of their difference, but denied that he had ever struck her.

June 21, 1919, Freeman testified was one of these occasions.

Q.—Could you describe, Mrs. Freeman? A.—Yes. I slapped her.

Q.—Where? A.—[illegible] cause of it.

A.—She made a rush at me and had [illegible] the cover of [illegible]

Q.—How many times, all told, did you slap her? A.—Five or six times during the two and one-half years, when she made a rush at me or when she tried to get away from me when I asked her where she had been.

Freeman finished his direct examination with an indictment of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Cobb and also of Mrs. Florence Morton. He said, "Mrs. Freeman was a very quiet, sweet mother until she came under the influence of these sisters (naming them) who had an axe to grind, and who had no real interest in her, her happiness or the happiness of her children."

NEXT WORLD WAR WILL BE ON OIL, SAYS EXPERT

London, Jan. 29.—"The World War was largely waged on oil. The next one will be nearly wholly so, and Bismarck's dictum of 'blood and iron' brought up to date would be 'blood and oil,'" declared Read-Admiral Philip Dumas, retired. He has appealed to British oil technologists to eliminate waste in the use of oil and for a system of research which will increase production.

"Save the oil," he begged, "if for nothing else we shall require it for the wars of the future, which will come despite the efforts of the late army of geniuses in Paris to make future wars impossible."

WANTS DRUG STORES OPEN ALL NIGHT

Representative Thomas A. Niland of East Boston asked the legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs today to recommend legislation providing that drug stores shall be kept open all night in order that people without telephones in their homes may have access to public telephones in the drug stores. He charged that East Boston people, stricken with influenza in the epidemic a year ago, were refused permission to use telephone in the city fir stations.

London, Jan. 29.—British women who are stepping out into local politics and social service work find they are poor orators, so are rushing to public speaking instructors to remedy their defects. And with women coveting places in Parliament, a fillip has been given to women's oratory classes throughout England.

SIX REGIMENTS FOR DEVENS

Infantry, Cavalry and Artillery Organizations to Be Sent to Ayer

Under the reorganization plans of the War Department Camp Devens at Ayer is to become a divisional camp. Plans call for the location there of three regiments of infantry, a regiment of cavalry, one of field artillery and one of heavy artillery.

It is believed that in time an additional regiment of infantry and, possibly, engineers, signal corps and ambulance corps men will be added bringing the division up to army standards. The units will be made up entirely of New England men.

According to Colonel Harris, chief of staff to General Edwards, the 13th Infantry, 26th Infantry and 43rd Infantry will be the original arrivals. The former will be recruited from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island. The 26th Infantry will come from Massachusetts and the 43rd from Connecticut.

CLASH AT TRIAL OF SOCIALISTS

Counsel for Expelled Assemblymen Angered by "Smoke Screen" Charge

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29.—At today's hearing on the expulsion of the five New York Socialist assemblymen, Judge Sutherland, of counsel for the state, and Seymour Stedman, counsel for the Socialists, clashed when the former shouted: "I ask that this smoke screen be dropped."

Stedman had just opposed the introduction of evidence showing the conviction of the American Socialist society under the espionage law. The remark angered Stedman.

The incident happened while Alfernon Lee, Socialist, director of the Rand School of Social Science, was on the stand testifying that the American Socialist Society was in reality the owner of the Rand School. Stedman's point was the American Socialist Society's case was an appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and could not therefore be considered as evidence.

Chairman Martin closed the uproar by ruling that the uncontested conviction could be accepted as evidence.

There was another clash between Stedman and Chairman Martin over the reading of the Russian Soviet constitution. Martin finally admitted it entire and ordered it into the record.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

A Cincinnati Barber Tells How to Make a Remedy for Gray Hair.

Mr. Frank Harbaugh of Cincinnati, Ohio, who has been a barber for more than forty years, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger, it is easy to use, does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

England's Policy Is to Crush Our Merchant Marine, Declares Senator Jones

Washington, Jan. 29.—"England is determined we shall not have a merchant marine of consequence, and we must meet the situation," Senator Jones, chairman of the Senate commerce committee, said today.

Senator Jones has placed an editorial from the English merchant marine magazine, "Fair Play," before the committee, which he made public today. The editorial says:

"While it has been a question of the survival of the fittest, we have forcibly done our level best to crush or mold opposition, and as regards America's merchant marine, we shall go on doing it."

A proposition will be advanced before the end of the hearings, it is understood, to pass a bill which will make it mandatory to keep the security holdings in the United States merchant marine in the hands of citizens, if such a law can be drafted.

CALLS AMERICA BIG PROFITEER

London Paper Charges U. S. Is Making Whole World Pay Tribute

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 29.—The Daily Express, in a bitter attack, charges that "America's colossal profiteering is making the whole world pay tribute in exchanges because the United States has a financial stranglehold upon her co-belligerents."

The article asks the United States to remove the whiphand and help put Europe upon her feet. The plea is followed by the declaration that if the United States is determined to continue her extortion from Europe then Europe must get together and break America's financial domination.

The newspaper endeavors to show how the United States financiers and others "while paying lip service to assist Europe have been doing nothing but line their pockets."

The Daily Express says that America is driving the hardest bargains possible and that as the exchange rates now stand world construction is stagnated. The newspaper declares that the United States is the centre of a grave international situation, which is almost as serious a menace to civilization as German militarism.

"America is prostituting on a scale hitherto unknown. Americans are buying businesses in England at the rate of 15 shillings to the pound. They get two francs worth for every franc spent in France. They are obtaining even better terms in Italy, while in Austria and Germany Americans are picking up untold wealth."

BIFF!

Stop jolting Liver and Bowels with violent drugs, but take "Cascarets."

"Dynamiting" bile out of your system with calomel and other sickening purgatives is all wrong. Salts, Oil and Cathartic Waters act by flushing the bowels with the digestive juices which are vital to the stomach. Cascarets are different. They act as a tonic to the bowel muscles, which is the only sensible way to relieve a bilious attack, a sour, acid stomach or constipated bowels. There is no griping or inconvenience. You naturally return to regularity and cheerfulness. Cascarets cost very little and they work while you sleep.—Advertisement.

Baldness Conquered

A veteran business man, who was almost completely bald and had tried tonics, lotions, shampoos, etc., in vain, came across an Indians' elixir by which he grew a complete crop of healthy hair in a few processes. The hair elixir is called "KOTALKO." Others—men and women—have reported remarkable aid to hair growth, relief from dandruff, cessation of falling hair by using Kotalko.

When Bald

In a vast number of cases, when hair falls out, the roots are not dead, but remain for some time imbedded in the scalp, the seeds or bulbs needing only fertility. The usual hair tonic, lotion or shampoo is not the proper nourishment for the hair and stimulate the growth. It costs as little to try Kotalko as it would for a year or less for hair which the vigor being to use.

Wonderful results reported. For men's, women's and children's hair. If you are bald, or losing hair, or have dandruff, you should try KOTALKO; it may be what's needful for your scalp and in such case it is a pleasure to observe the starting of new hair and its steady increase until profuse growth. You may obtain a full box of genuine Kotalko at any drug store. Or a proof trial will be mailed if you send 10 cents, silver or stamps, to John Hart Brittain, Station F, New York, N. Y.

Efforts to Make Him Talk on Third Term Result in Failure

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 29.— President Wilson, who is slowly but surely recovering from his long illness, has no intention of declining, in advance, the nomination for a third term. Men in close touch with the White House state this with the force of positive conviction.

Sundry and subtle efforts to draw the President from his reserve are under way now and others have been made in the past, but thus far all have met with signal failure. While many, it is said, would willingly give the last few years off the tag end of their lives to know definitely what is in his mind—Democrats as well as Republicans—only a decided change in the general political situation, it is believed, would cause him to grant them their wish.

The unconditional ratification of the Treaty of Versailles the feeling is would in the President's opinion, afford such a change. Its ratification without any interpretative reservations might likewise be so regarded.

Otherwise, political long heads declare the President must remain a political enigma.

Democrats freely own up to the fear that William Jennings Bryan may try to stampede the convention, when it gathers at San Francisco, splitting the party as Theodore Roosevelt did the Republicans in 1912. Should this or any similar emergency arise the potential candidacy of President Wilson for another term in the White House would, in the opinion of political tacticians, likely edough save the day.

JAPANESE ACQUIRE BIG TRACTS IN PHILIPPINES

Manila, Jan. 29. — Members of the Philippine legislature are worried over the acquisition of desirable agricultural lands by Japanese.

The Japanese, official investigations recently disclosed, control the richest part of Davao province, the greatest hemp section in the islands, and a few days ago a great stir was caused by the Japanese purchase of a large sugar estate not far from Manila.

Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 29.—Americanize native born Americans first, is the advice given by Professor J. W. Breitwieser, of the department of education of the University of California. Professor Breitwieser stated that the greatest economic problem in this country today is Americanizing the registered American voter.

RAPS BALANCE OF POWER POLICY

Hilaire Belloc Would Have British Strive to Retain European Repose

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 29.—Declaring that Great Britain for the past two centuries has fattened herself at the expense of other powers by playing one group against another, Hilaire Belloc, famous British publicist, makes a plea that this country revise her foreign policy. Belloc argues that the British empire needs no further territorial additions.

The present vast world domain comprising the British empire was constructed by throwing the weight of the English army and navy into the scale at the opportune moment, he says, and continues:

"But a policy which fitted this country so well during the rise of its colonial and commercial power is not fitted for a period of conservation."

Mr. Belloc argues that the new foreign policy should be "Maintenance of European repose."

Mr. Belloc asserts that "when the armistice was signed British statesmen at once conceived the idea of a balance of power between continental Europe and the United States. As the British regarded America the stronger a policy of attempted alliance with the United States was at once launched.

"That alliance the people of the United States will presumably reject," he says, "but whether they accept it or not, it was in line with the old British tradition. The plan at the bottom was for Britain to join in a sea alliance with the United States."

SAYS BRITISH UNREST WANES

Lloyd George's Soldier Son Tells of Greater Comradeship Among the Classes

New York, Jan. 29.—Major Richard Lloyd George, soldier son of England's Premier, talked at the Hotel Pennsylvania of conditions abroad. He said:

"Not unlike America, very high prices prevail in England and the people are quite dissatisfied. Thousands of women have lost their jobs since the soldiers returned from the war. This has caused unrest.

"But we are slowly recovering. In fact, all Europe is. France and Belgium will recover quickest because their people seem to grasp a situation quicker than anybody else. And, perhaps, our people are slower.

"One of the best things the war did for England was to bring but a greater sense of comradeship among the classes. This was largely brought about by abolishment of the landowner."

He said that the Labor party was growing stronger every day, but that no party was strong enough to decimate England.

The Irish question, he said, was "making everybody sick."

It is alleged that the respondent "has been guilty of gross misbehavior and wickedness, repugnant to and in violation of the marriage covenant in that he has attempted to convert your petitioner to the radical and Soviet doctrines in which he believes, by refusing to allow her to associate with her friends and relatives, or any one else who does not believe in like doctrines and that he has repeatedly frightened her by threatening to force her to go to Russia with him against her will."

'Spiritualism a Huge 'Fake,' Says Rinn

New York, Jan. 29.—"Spiritualism is one of the biggest fakes perpetrated by unscrupulous mediums upon the weak and credulous. Since the war, thousands upon thousands of mothers, fathers, wives, sweethearts and loved ones of those killed in battle are taking up spiritualism as a last resort.

"Mediums have been quick to see the trend and are reaping a harvest. I want to tell these poor, deluded people now that there isn't an honest medium on the face of the earth. It is to save these people from themselves that I am offering $5,000 to any organization generally, and the Society for Psychical Research in particular, that will stand a real, honest to goodness scientific test to prove the existence of a real spirit. I have deposited a check with the Irving National Bank to await the decision of any committee appointed."

Joseph F. Rinn, a wholesale fruit and produce broker, at No. 319 Washington street, made this statement today. He was formerly a member of the Society for Psychical Research. He has studied psychic phenomena for thirty years.

He exposed Eusapra Palladino after she had come to this country ten years ago. He said today:

"Palladino has earned an international reputation as an honest medium before she came to this country, and yet when I offered to duplicate anything she did she failed to meet me and returned to Europe. From that day until her death last Summer she never took part in another manifestation.

"I thought her exposure at that time had killed off spiritualism forever, but the war has revived it with a vengeance.

"The phenomena on which spiritualism is based are disproved by the fact that no one has yet proved anything under a scientific analysis. Ninety-five per cent of all mediums have been exposed and driven out of business."

THE DEAF HEAR

Mr. William H. Bryson (aged 74), 99 Swan St., Everett, Mass., foreman for an architect, says "I had been deaf for 5 years—so deaf that I could not hear a watch tick when pressed tightly against either ear. I had noises in my head and confusing sounds like a pack of dogs fighting. I am in charge of from 25 to 30 men, and this inability to hear was a great handicap to me. Nothing that I could do to improve my hearing or banish the noise was of any avail until I read of the marvelous success of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians in the treatment of deafness and head noises. One of my men told me that the Osmo-Chemic Physicians had treated him successfully for stomach trouble, and he was about to take a relative of his to them for treatment, and that encouraged me to hope for the successful treatment of my deafness. Well, they treated me, and I feel fifteen years younger, and, best of all, I hear again, and the dreadful noises are gone."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description, as CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE, BIRTHMARKS, MOLES, FACIAL BLEMISHES, ETC.

TODAY'S BEAUTY TALK

You can enjoy a delightful shampoo with very little effort and for a very trifling cost if you get from your druggist a package of canthrox and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid—enough. It is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. Your shampoo is now ready. Just pour a little at a time on the scalp and hair until both are entirely covered by the daintily perfumed preparation that thoroughly dissolves and removes every bit of dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing, the hair dries quickly with a fluffiness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich luster and a softness that makes arranging it a pleasure.—Advertisement.

EXPECT SHIFT IN TREATY VOTE

Change That Will Insure Ratification Looked for at Capital

Washington, Jan. 29.—The bi-partisan treaty conference which was to have taken place today in Senator Lodge's office was postponed until tomorrow on account of the absence of Senator Lenroot, Republican, of Wisconsin, one of the conferees.

Acceptance of the "American principles," inextricably interwoven in the Lodge reservations, by enough Democratic senators to insure ratification of the treaty was generally believed today to be impending.

It was reported that the White House favored Senator Underwood's proposal for a committee of conciliation, consisting of five Republicans and five Democratic senators, in case the bi-partisan conference ended in failure.

No move will be made by Senator Hitchcock to call the peace treaty up on the floor of the Senate as long as there is any chance of an agreement between Republican and Democratic Senators being reached on the Lodge reservations, Senator Hitchcock stated today.

EDWARDS INTENDS TO STAY IN THE ARMY

Major-General Edwards denied today that he was going to retire from the army and enter the grocery business. "I simply allowed my name to be used in a business firm which my father started years ago, in order to get it in shape since the recent death of my brother. I am not going into the grocery business and I have no intention of leaving the army," explained the general.

The efficiency of the Northeastern Department received praise today from the War Department. Officers from other departments will be sent here for a week to study and examine some of the methods followed by the department in the conduct of its affairs.

Major-General Edwards addressed the people of Westford today at their welcome home gathering to the army and navy veterans. He will speak this evening to French war veterans of Lowell.

Who's Who ON BOSTON'S NEW POLICE FORCE

WILLIAM J. COX.

William J. Cox, former first sergeant of the 225th Motor Truck Company of the Pioneer Division, stationed for 23 months at Camp Devens, is now wearing the official police blue. Nightly he covers route 6 near the North Station, which runs over Causeway, Portland and Lowell streets. When Cox enlisted in the service, on May 3, 1917, there was no place by the name of Camp Devens. He, with a handful of other men, were sent to Ayer to make the camp, and the results of their work was the construction of one of the best camps in the country. Born in Charlestown, Cox was an embalmer before he entered the service. He joined the police force November 8, last year.

Rules "Wet" Exports Illegal After 16th

Washington, Jan. 29.—The last hope of American distillers to export their stocks of liquor for sale in foreign countries was blasted when Solicitor-General Alexander King ruled that export applications filed after January 16 were not lawful.

Owing to a dearth of transportation, many distillers had filed applications for shipment of their stocks after the date of constitutional prohibition. The Solicitor-General ruled that the constitutional amendment expressly forbids liquor exportations after January 16.

Finds $3.62 in Quart Bottle of Milk

"Money found in a quart of milk; can you imagine it?" Thus writes Charles Mellonagle of Charlestown in a letter to the Boston American. The windfall was $3.62, but was the recipient pleased? Hardly. "In these days, when we are striving to kill all germs possible!" he continued. The money was wrapped in a bill rendered by a Boston firm to a Back Bay customer. The customer had apparently dropped the sum into the bottle.

FILE $300 WAR BONUS BILL

Congressional Measure Provides for "Victory Tax" to Furnish Funds

Washington, Jan. 29.—Bonuses of $300 for every officer, enlisted man, nurse and field clerk, who served at least two months in the war with Germany, are proposed in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Luther W. Mott, Republican, of New York. Mott is a member of the Ways and Means Committee, which has jurisdiction over such legislation.

The bill also provides for a tax of one-half of one per cent on all sales which would be known as a "Victory Tax." The Treasury Department would be authorized to issue certificates of indebtedness to pay the bonuses and these certificates would be retired as soon as sufficient revenue was received from the tax.

The additional tax according to Mott, will amount to [illegible] less than a billion and one-half dollars, while it is estimated that the tax on sales would produce one and three-quarters billions a year so that it would probably be in effect only about ten months.

MUSTARINE

Sims would take no joy in depleting the work of our doughboys only more than he would in saving the American gob wasn't on the job. So say not Mr. Sims.

But if our doughboys did not go through, I wonder who did?

Now Sims wasn't running to ask of what did or did not win the war without a reason. What was he driving at? And who or what was back of him when he talked like that?

Here's the case. The armistice is pending, the war is over. The war being over the fighters pass on; enter the shouters. And what is their job?

Well, the distribution of rewards—who is compensated—whatever word we put it to use, rather next doesn't it? A fight now who should get the laurels, shade of the spoils. Why, the nation which has done the most fighting, isn't that so. And what nation was that?

WHO WON THE WAR?

Let us put it up to our class in history our own select class. Now then, boys, who won the war? What do I hear—England? Of course England and who else could win it? But I seem to hear some doubting voices, the voices I am sorry to say, of our dear misled soldiers and sailors too. Shame on you, boys—to cast doubt on the achievements of that dear country which has always shown herself to be the best friend of every one of you. Even in this matter of sharing in the after compensation she is insisting on her bare rights merely in the interests of pure justice—pure abstract justice, which, of course, has always prevailed in English political speculations.

But I see that the doubters are not convinced, therefore will you, William Sims, arise and prove to the class that our dear England did truly win this war. I want to state to at present that William is by far the best coached boy in this class. For a long time now he has been in my special charge and has proved himself a most apt pupil. If only all of you were so apt to learn your lessons.

So, Sir William arises and tells the world—well, what he has told them already through a censored press from London and what he told them the other day in Washington about the American navy. And now it seems the army did not do its share, either.

WANTED REAL FACTS.

Let us pace Admiral Sims in one more new light in this matter. Our Congressmen were over before to France to get some firsthand knowledge of what was going on, naturally they went to headquarters for it. With many more of the American public they had been educated up to where most of them thought that Sims was about the only American naval officer doing anything. Of course he had the right dope about things. Did you see Sims, after a rush dinner at a large restaurant, shake his stiff across the table to the visiting Congressmen?

Congressmen, if amenable and not too wide-awake can be made pretty useful in more ways than one, but there are wider avenues for propaganda than even the halls of Congress. There are boys and girls in our schools and readers in libraries, an entire generation of good Americans [illegible] eager to be educated in the truth. WHO KNOWS one with AUTHORITY behind him and with the TRUTH.

And so I open now with a little book he is writing off the cuff. The book is now being published in installments by American newspapers on Sundays. Read his issue of last Sunday's and see what we get. They have been running for weeks, but I take last Sunday's for illustration because anybody can go out and get a back number and verify what I say.

The entire installment is given over to telling the exploits of the crew of a British "mystery ship." Let me say a word about mystery ships (Q-boats to their friends and enemies). Some time ago I wrote about these Q-boats, but their value to the cause and the danger incurred by their crews in the early stages have been exaggerated.

THE Q-BOAT AFFAIR.

The men of a Q-boat ship are all taking chances, but at that not near the chances that the crew of the U-boat attacking them are taking. The Q-boat, usually a good sized merchant ship, had a good big gun mounted [illegible] and also two or three pairs of guns of smaller caliber, which [illegible] the decoy. I was [illegible] with [illegible] fifteen and [illegible] her crew of [illegible] between wind and water and one which landed in her engine room and put her steam department out of commission; and yet, two hours after we got to her she was headed back for our convoy under her own steam and later made port. And she had been shelled by one of the new big U-boats of nearly 300 feet long and carrying two 6-9 guns—pretty big guns.

The U-boat engaged by Sims' much praised British ship was up against one of the older type of U-boats, smaller and carrying a single three or four-inch gun—with much less range and penetrative power than the Dunraven's. A U-boat, because of its being so much lower in the water, makes a poor target, an advantage to her, but any one well pierced shell will start her for the bottom, and when a U-boat starts for the bottom her crew are through—no getting away in boats and being picked up for them, so there is for that British stunt of which Sims makes so much.

Later, when the U-boats got the Q-boats "doped" out and came at them with bigger guns and in a different way, the Q-boats went quickly out of fashion, but while they did business they were a picturesque lot and their crews great heroes in the popular eye. And why not? Any man who fights at sea ought to be boosted for a hero. Besides being blown up he has a chance to be drowned, too.

That British officer whom Sims praises so highly was a good, brave man but not a foolish one—he quit the Q-boat game before the newer type of U-boats got working.

AMERICANS TO RESCUE.

Sims admires so wonderfully the rescue of the Dunraven that one installment is not enough for him to [illegible] making a second [illegible] our next history of it; but our fathers did some pretty good rescue work there, too, and some of us who are interested in our own navy have been waiting for Sims to say a little something about them in his book.

Take the case of the British ship Wellington abandoned at sea after she had been torpedoed. The volunteers from our patrol boat Seneca took off her crew and then went aboard of her and tried to get her to port. Their own ship, the Seneca, had to pass on in her convoy duty and so they were left alone on the Wellington in the Bay of Biscay, very well knowing that a few hours of bad weather would be bad business for them.

That same night bad weather did come and before morning she sank under them. The last two men to leave her dove off her propeller just as she went under. There they were tossing about from one high sea to another in the darkness. A destroyer of ours came along and by great work—floating life rafts and buoys and sending men over the side with life lines around them, and so on, managed to save some of them. But eleven of the twenty-one were lost, and those saved were not much good for a long time after. I met two of them in Brest five days after they were brought in. They were there in the hospital and there the doctors said they would have to stay another while.

Has Admiral Sims embossed in print over that little deed? Not up to date.

Take the case of that volunteer crew who went aboard the Westward Ho. She had also been abandoned and torpedoed and was supposed to be sinking when her crew abandoned her. Along came a convoy with some of our patrols as escorts. Some hopeful spirits from two of the escort vessels persuaded to look the ship over. They found her loaded with a valuable cargo and their commanders agreed they would try and tow her to port. They got up auxiliary steam, pumped a bit of water out of her and got the main engine going but when they tried to steam ahead the old lady refused to go. All right—try her seven feet. And steer first they got her into Brest, 315 miles away. Pretty fair? Oh, yes, but nothing to what—oh, you know.

THRILLING RESCUE.

There was the Florence H. off the French coast. She was an unarmed [illegible] ship which caught fire and blew up. Can you picture her with her sides blown out, shells flying every which way, boxes of smokeless powder blown clear and floating around on the water, burning. A column of flame, described as some as high as Bunker Hill, was shooting up from [illegible] deck and her crew, to get away [illegible] had to take their chance [illegible] the burning stuff in the [illegible]

[illegible] comes the destroyer Seneca [illegible] was she to get in among that [illegible] and grab off the crew [illegible] when the wreck was not [illegible] shooting up flame [illegible] danger was carrying two cases of [illegible] on her deck. A [illegible] suppose would happen [illegible] one of those exploding [illegible] toned to come aboard with [illegible] rounds of TNT in its way? Who [illegible] once and do?

If her skipper dare is to drive [illegible] little old Seneca into that fiery hell, tear a line through it, trusting to his propellers to toss the exploding boxes [illegible] of his ship, and then [illegible] come back and rip another line through it, and another then let volunteers man their little deck hose, mark their way into the burning stuff and quit is what were left alive of the crew of the Florence.

[illegible] these [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] wishes [illegible] fair [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] by there will be a not [illegible] [illegible] on fed up on Bunk, too.

PRAISE ONLY FOR BRITISH.

It is the best there is, O, indeed yes, written by our admiral's command over there, author native of [illegible] It is standard, praise of King [illegible] highly and deservedly [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] American navy [illegible] ever did anywhere [illegible] the great war. So when he [illegible] to betray the Navy [illegible] to pick out the deeds of [illegible] ships as the American admiral command over there he would [illegible] as noted Persons if he [illegible] [illegible] surely. It must be that he were [illegible] note.

[illegible] you are anything of a [illegible] as me mind when he told the [illegible] through the London press in the [illegible] that the American navy [illegible] performed poorly, and follow it up by telling a party of American newspapermen in Paris that the American army had also fallen down?

Is [illegible] an American naval officer [illegible] he something else? If something [illegible] then what?

And what is the ultimate purpose?

$30,000 a Year and $30 a Week

SOME of the people who buy furniture of us have an income of $30,000 a year, or more.

Most of the people who trade here have an income of $30 a week.

As a matter of fact, our business is organized to give equal service to those in the $30 a week class as well as in the $30,000 a year class.

Our ideals are much the same as the ideals of Henry Ford. We want to give the millions the greatest possible values for their dollars.

The millionaires can take care of themselves. A few dollars one way or the other means nothing in their lives.

But a dollar in the life of a man earning $25, $30, $35 or $40 a week, especially if he has a wife and children, is of the greatest importance.

We save dollars for our customers because we buy in large quantities and because our operating costs are extremely low.

Our low prices gave us our well-known slogan: To save your dollars—trade at Moller's.

And please remember this always: We are just as glad to have you buy on credit as for cash. You will receive just as hearty a welcome when you come to visit us as when you come to buy.

Remember—Our 38th Annual February Furniture Sale was inaugurated MONDAY, JANUARY 26th, and will continue during the entire month of February, at discounts ranging from

Swift & Company's 1919 Earnings

How They Affected You

During the twelve months ended November 1, 1919, (its fiscal year), Swift & Company transacted its large volume of business on the smallest margin of profit in its history.

Sales over $1,200,000,000.00

Net earnings $13,870,181.34

Our shipments were in excess of 5,500,000,000 lbs.

This means that our earnings were less than 1⅛ cents on each dollar of sales, or a quarter of a cent on each pound shipped.

Consumer—

The average consumer eats about ½ lb. of meat per day—180 lbs per year. If he purchased only Swift & Company products he would have contributed only 45 cents (180 lbs. @ ¼ cent a pound)—a year profit to Swift & Company for its investment and service, less than one cent per week.

Our earnings were so small as to have practically no effect on the family meat bill.

Live Stock Raiser—

Swift & Company handled in 1919 over 16,000,000 head of live stock. You can figure for yourself that our earnings of 1⅛ cents on each dollar of sales are too small to affect the price you received for your stock.

We paid all it was humanly possible to pay considering what the meat and by-products could be sold for.

DARTMOUTH CLUB TAKES LEAD IN AMATEUR HOCKEY LEAGUE

DONAHUE IS BIG STAR OF GAME

Superb Work in Goal Halts Harvard Club's Rushes; Varsity Wins

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

The boys became a bit belligerent in the Dartmouth Club-Harvard Club hockey clash wherein the former organization took the lead in the Amateur Hockey League race, by the score of 6 to 5.

To Donahue of the Dartmouth Club is due much of the credit for the victory. With no opportunity to practice as a goal guardian, he entered the game and turned most after shot from the Dartmouth Club net. The ex-Crimsonites, with George Percy, Bobby Bright and Traff Hicks leading the attack, kept the puck well within Dartmouth territory throughout the major portion of the first half, and only through Donahue's superb net work was a big Harvard Club lead prevented.

Johnny Murphy of the Dartmouth Club and Carl Holmes of that organization, however, made their forays of Harvard Club territory very satisfactory. Shortly after the game got underway Murphy raced a long shot, and a minute or two later he passed the puck to Holmes, who added one more point to Dartmouth's lead.

It was in the first few minutes of the second half that Stanley Percy came to the fore. He scored one goal for the Harvard Club on a pass from Clifford, and then tied the score for the second time with a long carry and a nifty drive. Hal Murphy of the Green kept playing, and by following up a drive that Welde had checked he gave Dan Green the lead once more, and then added another goal on a shot from the middle of the ice. Hicks took a pass from Percy for Harvard final count, making the score 6 to 5 in favor of the Hanoverians.

As was generally expected, the Harvard varsity had no difficulty in topping the Tufts hockey sextet, 5 to 0

In the trials Oliver Bardes came in first, Tod Spitz got second and Captain Mich Madens was placed third. Fourth place went to Harry Jarud, but his brain over Jim Downey, member of last year's team, was so close that the decision was held which man to entrain for the Crimson.

THE CHICAGO OPERA SEASON.

ARCHITECTURE is frozen music. The Chicago opera singers have thawed it out and are busy slinging it at each other.

YOU can always tell when the opera season cuts loose in Illinois. First you hear a soprano voice knocking off an intermezzo-bawlingoutto, followed by a chorus of police whistles. Then follows a heavy beevotone, accompanied by an augmented orchestra of ambulance gongs.

ON the back of Adams Express company blanks are jumble words dodging all responsibility for fire, earthquakes, strikes, riots and war. That's the old blanks. The new blanks include Middle West opera seasons.

IN time of war, Chicago was a peaceful ballwick. The Great Lakes canoe flotilla protected 'em from the cruel German and the opera stars were back in their native countries honing up their voices on garlic, limburger and other ethereal food of dainty songbirds

BUT the minute the Kaiser slid for Holland the war started for Chi. The opera panic was on.

THE first guy to run the trachoma blockade at Ellis Island was Signore Vodka Yellovich. During the war the Signore's voice was as silent as a nickel piano trying to digest a lead slug. Between the Allies and the Trotsky boys the Signore was a busy guy trying to keep between 'em. He carried his betweening too far when he landed in Chicago between a contralto and a soprano. The Signore is as gallant as he is talented. He sings himself into a lady's heart and then bows himself out. The lad he also very crafty. He marries one wife during a Republican administration and another when the Democrats are grabbing the government pay, thus making a political question out of a felony. Having four or five extra wives in Russia doesn't annoy the Signore, who falls in love at first sight and then develops astigmatism.

AN artistic temperament is a shock absorbing definition of faulty plumbing in the skullpan. While the Signore can stand the perils of bigamy and a Chicago winter, the sight of a polka dotted necktie in the nickel seats is liable to throw him right back into the agitation circuit of the Keeley Institute. When Mme. Yvonne Gall-Squawko is thrilling the Centulsion song from the autopsy scene in the opera "Home Brew," all must be as silent as a harem. The Mme. has a voice that sounds like a Ford charging gears on a hill. It is on Madame's behalf that the Chicago Board of Aldermen passed an ordinance that all squirrels must be muzzled during the opera season.

THEY chirp that even Carl Mucks is willing to flap back to Boston and play the "Star Spangled Banner," provided that he is allowed to toot it on a clockenspiel. America is a great feeding ground for the alien song hawks who grab their fish here and flap back home to eat 'em.

THE latest battle started when Mme. Dolorous La Bunk, the great French prima donna, refused to sing in Italian, because it might affect her old man's chances of being elected Alderman from the Stockyards district. Her old man's name is Counihan, and everybody knew it after the third drink. He is still living, being one of the few relics of the sousesilihic age of 1918.

WELL, it's a great show and Chicago is welcome to 'em. We hand 'em their opera with the same cheerful unselfishness of the slave handing Cleopatra the viper. We wish 'em the joy of the worm. Everybody is happy when the orchestra leader pokes his baton into the cage and the works bust loose like a zoo around feeding time.

THERE'S no real harm accomplished. The opera always operates at night and doesn't affect daylight saving in the least.

Governor to Attend Football Banquet

Governor Calvin Coolidge will be the guest of honor at the big banquet to Harvard's victorious football team at the Copley-Plaza, Tuesday evening.

MUGGSY WINNER OVER DORSEY

East Boston Battler Has Little Trouble in Putting Bridgeport Boy Away

By JACK CONWAY.

K. O. Muggsy still has a perfect batting average. Tommy Dorsey of Bridgeport didn't give the East Boston lave king any real opposition in their bout at the Suffolk Club. Muggsy was apparently in a hurry to get home or something for he rocked his opponent to sleep in the first session.

The Bridgeport boxer was afraid of bumping into Muggsy's right and he fought in a crouching position. Muggsy shot a right hand wallop to his opponent's jaw. Dorsey toppled over and Referee Larry Sweeney counted him out.

Billy Woods of Manchester won over Patsy Green of Cambridge in the semi-final eight rounder. Joe Ryan of Roxbury, stopped Art Sears of the same district in six sessions. Barney Reuben and Denny Glynn, both of Roxbury, boxed six rounds to a draw, while Jack O'Leary of Cambridge won over Dan Donovan of Somerville in two frames.

McMENMIN AND MUGGSY TO CLASH AT C. A. C.

This is a day of rest and recreation for K. O. Muggsy. The kayo king can go to the movies or take a sleighride tonight if he desires as he isn't billed to knock anybody out. Tomorrow evening at the Commercial Club Muggsy will hop into the calcium glare once more with Johnny McMenmin of Cambridge as an opponent in a twelve-round bout.

McMenmin is the only one of Muggsy's opponents who has gone the distance. The Cambridge boxer lost a decision after twelve rounds of fighting

DOYLE WILLING TO ACCOMMODATE BOGASH

If Louis Bogash is really eager to fight Paul Doyle is willing to accommodate him. So that the Bridgeport boxer will have something to listen to when the call for possible decision. Tony Palozolo has $500 which he is willing to bet that his protege can defeat Bogash.

Palozolo, however, makes the stipulation that Bogash weigh 142 pounds ringside. "Doyle's a welterweight," states Palozolo, "and is tired of boxing as a welterweight him by from ten to fifteen pounds."

PAL REID TO BOX GEORGE ROBINSON

Pal Reid, former tar, will have George Robinson of Cambridge as an opponent in a ten-round bout at the Commonwealth A. A. Saturday night. The Commonwealth Club originally had planned that it would hold its show next Monday night, but moved the date of its meeting up to Saturday night so as not to conflict with the Shevlin-Alger scrap at the Suffolk Club. Saturday night's bouts should be popular with the right kind of attractions.

TERRY BROOKS GUNNING FOR KNOCKOUT MUGGSY

Terry Brooks, West End welterweight, has been matched to put the K. O. Muggsy. He announces that he is prepared to battle on a winner-take-all basis, or to have the loser's end go to the Jimmy Americus Clancey Fund. Brooks has always been a sweet puncher and there are many fans who think he would be able to give the East Boston kayo star a severe try-out.

McCOY AND TREMBLY TO BOX AT MARLBORO

Al McCoy, former middleweight champion of the world, will display his ability as a fighter at Marlboro tomorrow night. He will have Eddie Trembly of this city as an opponent in a twelve-round contest. McCoy still possesses the wallop which enabled him to win the title by stopping George Chip. All of which will make things mighty interesting for Trembly.

BROWN MINGLES WITH DEFOE IN 12-ROUNDER

Frankie Brown of New York will have Billy Defoe, Providence lightweight, as an opponent in a twelve-round bout at the Crescent A. C. of Lawrence tonight. Defoe is big favorite in the Spindle City as a result of his contests there with Johnny Downes of South Boston. Brown was recently billed to meet Benny Valger, but the latter declared Frankie was "too tough."

CALZONE CLASHES WITH OLIVER NEXT SATURDAY

Al Calzone will clash with Johnny Oliver of Holyoke in a twelve-round bout at Milford Saturday afternoon. This match was billed for last Monday night, but was prevented on account of the poor weather conditions. The postponement has given the rival boxers added time in which to train. The result will probably be a stirring battle.

Jimmy Wilde Picked to Beat Mike Ertle

Milwaukee, Jan. 29.—Jimmy Wilde, British champion, will enter the ring here tonight against Mike Ertle in a 15 to 5 favorite. The fighters are to make 118 pounds later today.

Boys Box In Twelve-Round Feature Bout at Manchester

Kid Chakas and Tommy Elms, the Paterson, N. J., lightweight, will furnish the thrills in a twelve-round bout at Manchester, N. H., tonight. These boys met some time ago at Lowell and Elms was awarded the decision after a torrid mixup.

Chakas is boxing well right now and is out to reverse the result of his last meeting with Elms. Manchester last week Chakas proved he is boxing on high when he disposed of Jack Sharkey in the ninth of a twelve-round frolic.

UNIFORMITY IN TENNIS IS AIM

Association Officials Seek to Conform Rules With Those of Other Lands

Declaring that in presenting a revision of the rules of the annual meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, the rules committee is carrying out the specific instructions of the meeting of 1919, and the these revisions with few exceptions tend toward agreement rather than disagreement with the rules of other tennis playing nations, the committee issued yesterday through S. Wallis Merrihew, its chairman, a reply to some recent criticism.

"In statement calls attention to the fact that the revisions proposed for the most part relate to changes in wording and in no decree alter the fundamentals or the actual playing of the game, and that the proposed revision of the foot fault rule not only simplifies its present statement, but brings it more closely in harmony with the rule now enforced by the British associations of other countries

APRIL FOLLY

A Brilliant Film Romance With MARION DAVIES

By Cynthia Stockley

Watch for This Story in Motion Pictures

"April Folly," soon to be seen in leading motion picture theatres, is a Cosmopolitan production, released through Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as a Paramount-Artcraft picture, direction of Robert Z. Leonard

The Story to Date:

Lady Diana Sandilands, bound for South Africa, manages to lose her chaperone before the train leaves London, and, meeting a charming but poor Mr. April Poole, in the railway carriage, gets into a lively conversation with her.

"COULDN'T I? Good looks with- [illegible] won't be sick of it half way and [illegible] large back, I hope"

[illegible] knew how sick I am of being April Poole, you wouldn't be afraid." was the fervent answer.

Diana looked at her curiously: "It can't be only the clothes—though, of course, I imagine it must be rather not having the right clothes. By the way, there are plenty for us both, you know."

"I should hardly expect you to wear mine," said April drily. "No, as you practically suspect, it isn't only for the clothes, though they fascinate and lure me, and it isn't for the honor and glory of being Lady Diana, though that is fascinating, too, and it will be priceless to have the joke on the rest of the world for once. It is for various subtle reasons which I don't suppose you would altogether understand."

"Never mind them, then," interrupted Diana. "I'm not a bit subtle and don't care a tuppence for reasons. All I care about is having a rousing time for once in my life. Now, listen. I'll tell you a few things about myself, so that you won't get bowled if anyone asks you. My father is Lord Rescannon, and our place is Bothwick Castle, in Northumberland, is a gloomy old place that would give you the creeps.

"My mother died twenty-two years ago, when I was born and my father doesn't care about anything except acres and sheep. I was always been in the clutches of my maiden aunt, Lady Grisel Sandilands, a friend of my mother's, who could go her own free [illegible] without being watched and criticised. April Poole, in the lovely hats and gowns and jewels of Lady Diana would accept the dignity and social obligations that hedge a queen's daughter even on a voyage to South Africa. On arrival at the Cape each to assume her identity and disappear from the ken of their fellow travelers—April to be swallowed up by a Cape suburb, where she was engaged to teach music and French to the four daughters of a rich wine-grower; Diana to proceed to her destination [illegible] farm of [illegible] where an [illegible] awaited her, and [illegible] as pickers and [illegible]

"No one would be the wiser, I suppose, and no harm would accrue to anybody, while each girl would have the experience of enjoying herself in a new and original fashion. The only things they did not take into their calculations were their personal idiosyncrasies and the machinations of an old hag named Fate.

"What a time I'll have!" cried Diana. "[illegible] that you've got out of it as the [illegible] of Rescannon's daughter beats me! You

The Cinema Murder

A Thrilling Mystery Film Serial of Love and Intrigue in England and New York

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

HE has gone to England—gone to Detton Magna—gone to see whether there are any missing pieces to be found. He may be back any day now."

But what could he discover?" she faltered.

"God knows!" Philip groaned. "There's the whole ghastly truth there, if fortune helped him, and he were clever enough, if by any devilish chance the threads came into his hand. I don't think—I don't think there was ever any fear from the other side. I had all the luck. But, Elizabeth, sometimes I am terrified of this man Dane. I didn't mean to tell you this, but it's too late now. Do you know that I am watched, day by day? I pretend not to notice it—I am even rude, now and then, to shut it out from my own thoughts—but wherever I go there's some one shadowing me, some one walking in my footsteps. I'm perfectly certain that if you were to go to police headquarters here you could find out where I have spent almost every hour since I took that room in Monmouth House."

She gripped his fingers fiercely.

"Philip! Philip!"

He leaned forward, gazing with peculiar, almost passionate intentness, into the faces of the people as they swept along Broadway.

"Look at them, Elizabeth!" he muttered. "Look at that long mob of men and women sweeping along the pavements there, every kind and shape of man, every nationality, every age! They are like the little flecks on the top of a wave. I watched them when I first came and I felt almost reckless. You'd think a man could plunge in there and be lost, wouldn't you? He can't! I tried it. There is where in the living world where one can throw off everything of the past, where one can take up a new life, and memory doesn't come!"

She shook her head. She was more composed now. The moment of feverish excitement had passed. Her shrewd and level common sense had begun to reassert itself.

Real Problem

"Well?"

"My only real problem," he went on earnestly, "is this. Dare I hold you to your word, Elizabeth? Dare I, for instance, say 'yes' to the wonderful surrection of yours?—make you my wife and risk having people look at you in years to come, point at you with pity and say that you married a murderer who died a shameful death! Fancy how the tragedy of that would lie across your life—you who are so wonderful and so courted and so clever!"

"Isn't that my affair, Philip?" she asked calmly.

"No," he answered, "it's mine!" She turned and laughed at him. For a moment she was he, and he she.

"You refuse me?"

His eyes glowed.

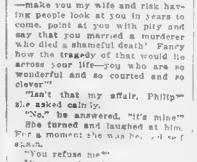
"Wait wait," he said hoarsely. "Until Dane comes to a from England!"

The car had stopped outside the theatre. Hat in hand and with his face breathed in smiles, the young missionaries had thrown open the door. The people on th epatement were nudging one shoulder [illegible] mons woman was about to descend. She turned back to Philip.

"Come in with me," she begged. "Somehow, I feel cold and lonely tonight. It hasn't anything to do with what we were talking about, going to happen, that something were coming out of the shadows, something that threatens either you or me. I'm silly, but come!"

Mr Pink appeared, and with him but I feel as though something were a somewhat remarkable figure—tall, immensely broad, ill-dressed man, with a strong, rugged face and a mass of gray hair. It was a man, who seemed, somehow or other, to proclaim himself of a bigger and stronger race than those amongst whom he moved. He had black eyes, and the heavy jaw of an Irishman. His face was curiously [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] blocking the way, his great hands suddenly thrust forward.

"Betty, by the Lord that loves us!" he exclaimed. "Here's luck-



The Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

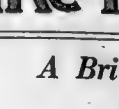
ALADDIN was right! Any woman of thirty would joyfully exchange her "old lamp" of experience for a bright "new lamp" of enthusiasm and magic dreams!

The paper shortage won't affect the average husband's love-letters.



He can still compress his whole passion into a fifty-word night letter.gram.

It is said that Noah was a bachelor for five hundred years of his life; but from his determination to pair everybody off when he boarded the ark he must have learned what a terribly lonely thing the single life really is!

Nobody on earth is so blase and cynical as a girl of sixteen, who has just recovered from a "grande passion" for a man who has never even glanced at her.

No doubt, when the original cave lady "came to" after her courtship, her first exclamation was, "Darling, tell me! Am I really the only woman you ever knocked senseless?"

If a husband and wife would show as much respect for one another's personal liberty as they do for one another's tooth brushes, they would not so often awaken from Love's Young Dream with a nightmare.

Of course, a woman's time is not half so valuable as a man's, and yet what woman ever was known to waste a precious minute over anything so foolish as a patent cigar-lighter?

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

There's an easy way to save $2. Get you have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add pure granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. If desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, heals the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for croup, tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

Page box, alone and gloomy, his [illegible] mournful autere demeanor interested by the severity of his evening clothes, and Sylvanus Power with the air of conqueror, Philip, unaccountably restless, left his seat in a very few minutes, and, making his way to the box office, scribbled a line to Elizabeth. The official to whom he handed it looked at him in surprise.

"Won't you go round yourself, Mr. Ware?" he suggested. "Miss Dalston has another ten minutes before she is on."

Philip shook his head.

"I'm looking for a man I know," he replied evasively. "I'll go [illegible] where about here in five minutes."

The answer came in less than that time. It was just a scrawled line in pencil:

Forgive me, dear. I will explain everything in the morning, if you will come to my rooms at 12 o'clock. This evening I have a hateful duty to perform and I cannot see you.

It was all abstract and impersonal at first, this jealousy which had come so suddenly to disturb the serenity of an almost too perfect day, but as the hours passed it seemed to him that his thoughts dwelt more often upon the direct cause of his brief separation from Elizabeth. He turned in at one of the clubs of which he had been made a member and threw himself gloomily into an easy-chair.

Philip ordered a drink to open an evening paper, and tried to read. The letters danced before his eyes, the whisky and soda stood neglected at his elbow. Afterward he found himself looking into space. There was something cynical, challenging about, in the manner in which that man had taken Elizabeth away from him, had acknowledged his introduction, even had treated the author of a play, a writer, as some sort of a mountebank, naming [illegible] by [illegible] for the amusements of the world. How did that man regard such gifts as his, he wondered?—

Sylvanus Power, of whom he had seen it written that he was one of the conquerors of nature, a hard but splendid utilitarian, the builder of railways in China and bridges for the transit of his goods amid the clouds of the mountain tops.

In the man's absence, his harshness, almost unconsciousness, seemed magnified. He was a rival, without a doubt, and tonight a favored one. How well had he known Elizabeth? For how long?

Sylvanus Power

"These unannounced comings and goings of yours from the ends of the earth are so upsetting to your friends," she declared.

"And this gentleman" What is he—"

Elizabeth laughed softly.

"I needn't tell you, Mr. Ware," she said, turning to Philip, "that this dear man here has a record—and I dare say you've heard of him. It is Mr. Sylvanus Power, and Sylvanus, this is Mr. Morton Ware, the author of our play—the House of Shams."

Philip felt his hand held in a strong, firm grasp which, it was, seemed to owe its vigor rather to the long, powerful fingers than to any real cordiality. Mr. Sylvanus Power was studying him from behind bushy eyebrows.

"So you're Mr. Ware—the person," he boomed. "I haven't met your play yet—hope to tonight. An English man, eh?"

"Yes, I am English," Philip assented coolly. "You come from the West, don't you?"

There was a moment's silence. Elizabeth laughed softly.

"Oh, there's no mistake about Mr. Power!" she declared. "He brings the breezy West with him, to Wall Street or Broadway, Paris or London. You can't shake it off or blow it away."

"And I don't know as I am particularly anxious to either," Mr. Power pronounced. "Are you going to your rooms, here, Betty? If so, I'll come along. I guess Mr. Ware will excuse you."

Philip was instantly conscious of the antagonism in the other's manner. As we know, he felt little more than acquiescence. He glanced towards Elizabeth, and the look in her face startled him. The color [illegible] cheek, and her eyes were full of appeal.

"If I can't [illegible]" she begged. "Philip, I have told [illegible] and we haven't [illegible]"

"You needn't expect to see anything more of [illegible] Philip replied curtly. "I have other engagements." He bowed and turned away, drawing her hand through his arm, "except on the stage, that [illegible] I am going to take her out and give her a [illegible] dinner. Au revoir, Fink! I'll say tonight here. Good-day to you, Mr. Ware."

CHAPTER VI.

PHILIP'S disposition had been so seriously affected by the emotions of the last few months, that he was not in the last surprised to find it nasty, that evening, both by a very serious and unfamiliar sparkle of jealousy. After an hour or so of [illegible] he made his way, as usual, to the theatre, but instead of going at once to Elizabeth's room, he slipped in at the back of the stalls. The house was crowded and seated in the

When a Girl Marries

Ann Lisle Writes Interestingly of the Trials and Slight Jealousies of a Bride

I ADE a laughing rejoinder, but wasn't thinking of my words.

What occupied my mind was that Evvy must be "rising twenty-eight," too. It made me feel more secure about her friendship with Jessi. She wouldn't be taking a boy five or six years younger than herself seriously. I wondered if Tom Mason had told me that deliberately—to reassure me. That would have been a nice, friendly thing to do, and it wasn't disloyal to Evvy, since Jim also knew.

By now we had reached the Harrison place, and with a fleeting sigh for the joy I might have felt in having Jim show me his old home, I wandered over the grounds with Tom Mason. The house is set on a hill overlooking the river, which twists at that point and sweeps down to a waterfall below what had been a mill-race. At the river's edge there is a half-rotting dock and a tumble-down boathouse. A path rises above them and cuts its way through a neglected garden which climbs the hill to the house. The place was a tangle of ruin and decay.

No One Living There

"I thought there were people living here," I said idly.

"Oh, no, the Sturges Construction Company took the place over in payment of a debt. They meant to put up a Summer hotel, and I suppose they will some day," replied Tom. "I want to show it to Jim's wife—when you are so disloyal to Jim whom you've known all your lives!"

Tom Mason laid his hand on my arm. I rose and tried to shake it off, but he caught me at it. I was in a ruthless mood and with his eyes burning down into mine he rasped:

"I was mad to say a word against Jim. You know I'm your worship of him. I care for you like that, too—but you're worth it. I want you to be happy, and if he hurts you in any way, I'll kill him. If you won't let me try to make you happy, I hope to Heaven he finds the most glorious woman in the world miserable."

Then he turned and [illegible] down the path to the river.

The Valley of the Giants

By Peter B. Kyne

"ONE line, Judge, one little line. What profit does your client want on that quarter-section?"

"That quarter-section is not in the market, Colonel. When it is, I'll send for you, since you're the only logical prospect should my client decide to sell. And remembering how you butted in on politics in this county last Fall and provided a slush-fund to beat me and place a crook on the Superior Court bench, in order to give you an edge in the many suits you are always filing or having filed against you, I rise to remark that you have about ten split seconds in which to disappear from my office. If you linger longer, I'll start throwing paperweights." And as if to emphasize his remark, the Judge's hand closed over one of the articles in question.

CHAPTER XXI.

UPON his return from the office that night, Bryce Cardigan found his father had left his bed and was seated before the library fire.

"Feeling a whole lot better today, eh, pal?" his son queried.

John Cardigan smiled. "Yes, son," he replied plaintively. "I guess I'll manage to live till next Spring."

"Oh, I knew there was nothing wrong with you, John Cardigan, that a healthy check wouldn't cure. Pennington rather jolted you, though, didn't he?"

"He did, Bryce. It was jolt enough to be forced to sell that quarter—I never expected we'd have to do it; but when I realize that it was a case of sacrificing you or my Giants, of course you won. And I didn't feel so badly about it as I used to think I would. I suppose that's because there is a certain morbid pleasure in a real sacrifice for those we love. And I never doubted but that Pennington would snap up the property the instant I offered to sell. Hence his refusal—In the face of our desperate need for money to carry on until conditions improve—almost floored your old man."

"Well, we can afford to draw our breath now, and that gives us a fighting chance, partner. And right after dinner you and I will sit down and start brewing a pot of powerful bad medicine for the Colonel."

"Son, I've been sitting here simmering all day." There was a note of the old dominant fighting John Cardigan in his voice now. "And it has occurred to me that even if I must sit on the bench and rot, I've not reached the point where my years have begun to affect my thinking ability." He touched his leonine head. "I'm as right as a fox upstairs, Bryce."

"Right-o, Johnny. We'll buck the line together. After dinner you trot out your plan of campaign and I'll trot out mine; then we'll tear them apart, select the best pieces of each and weld them into a perfect whole."

Accordingly, dinner disposed of, father and son sat down together to prepare the plan of campaign. For the space of several minutes of silence settled between them, the while they puffed meditatively upon their cigars. Then the old man spoke.

"We'll have to fight him in the dark."

"Why?"

Would Be Smashed

"Because if Pennington knows, or even suspects the identity of the man who who is going to parallel his logging railroad, he will throw all the weight of his truly capable mind, his wealth and his ruthlessness against you—and you will be smashed. To beat that man, you must do more than spend money. You will have to outthink him, outwork him, outgame him, and when eventually you have won, you'll know you've been in the fight of your career. You have one advantage starting out. The Colonel doesn't think you have the courage to parallel his road in the first place; in the second place, he knows you haven't the money; and in the third place he is morally certain you cannot borrow it, because you haven't any collateral to secure your note.

"We are mortgaged now to the limit, and our floating indebtedness is very large; on the face of things and according to the Colonel's very correct inside information, we're helpless; and unless the lumber-market stiffens very materially this year, by the time our hauling contract with Pennington's road expires, we'll be back where we were yesterday before we sold the Giants. Pennington regards that hundred thousand as get-away money for us. So, all things considered, the Colonel will be slow to suspect us of having an ace in the hole; but by jinks we have it, and we're going to play it."

"Your third step, then, will be to incorporate a railroad company under the laws of the State of California."

"I think I'll favor the fair State of New Jersey with our trade," Bryce suggested dryly. "I notice that when Pennington bought out the Henderson interests and reorganized that property, he incorporated the Laguna Grande Lumber Company under the laws of the State of New Jersey, home of the trusts. There must be some advantage connected with such a course."

"Have it your own way, boy. What's good enough for the Colonel is good enough for us. Now, then, you are going to incorporate a company to build a road twelve miles long—and a private road, at that. That would be a fatal step. Pennington would know somebody was going to build a logging road, and regardless of who the builders were, he would have to fight them in self-protection. How are you going to cover your trail, my son?"

Wise and Just

Bryce pondered. "I will, to begin, have a dummy board of directors. Also, my road cannot be private; it must be a common carrier, and that's where the shoe pinches. Common carriers are subject to the rules and regulations of the Railroad Commission."

"They are wise and just rules," commented the old man, "expensive to obey at times, but quite necessary. We can obey and still be happy. Objection overruled."

"Well, then, since we must be a common carrier, we might as well carry out deception still further and incorporate for the purpose of building a road from Sequoia to Granis Pass, Oregon, there to connect with the Southern Pacific."

"You forget the manage for our new corporation — the vice-president and general manager. The man we engage must be the fastest and most convincing talker in California; not only must he be able to tell a lie with a straight face, but he must be able to believe his own lies. And he must talk in millions, look millions, and act as if a million dollars were equivalent in value to a redwood stump. In addition, he must be a man of real ability and a person you can trust implicitly."

Found the Man

"I have the very man you mention. His name is Buck Ogilvy, and only this very day I received a letter from him begging me for a small loan. I have Buck on file in a fifth-class San Francisco hotel."

"Tell me about him, Bryce."

"Don't have to. You've just told me about him. However, I'll read you his letter. I claim there is more character in a letter than in a face."

Here Bryce read aloud:

Golden Gate Hotel—Rooms fifty cents—and up.

San Francisco, California, August fifteenth, 1916.

My Dear Cardigan: Hark to the voice of one crying in the wilderness; then picture to yourself the unlovely spectacle of a strong man crying.

Let us assume that you have duly considered. Now wind up your wrist and send me a rectangular piece of white, blue, green or pink paper bearing in the lower right-hand corner, in your clear, bold chirography, the magic words "Bryce Cardigan"—with the little up-and-down hook and flourish which identifies your signature given in serious moods and lends value to otherwise worthless paper. Five dollars would make me climb up; ten would start a slight smile; twenty would put a beam in mine eye; fifty would cause me to utter shrill cries of unadulterated joy and a hundred would inspire me to actions like unto those of a whirling dirvish.

I am so flat busted my arches make hollow sounds as I ground the hard pavements of a great city, seeking a job. Pausing on the brink of despair, that destiny which shapes our ends inspired me to think of old times and happier days and particularly of that pink-and-white midget of a girl who tended the soda-fountain just back of the railroad station at Princeton. You stole that damsel from me, and I never thanked you. Then I remembered you were a timber-king with a kind heart and that you lived somewhere in California; so I looked in the telephone book and found the address of the San Francisco office of the Cardigan Redwood Lumber Company. You have a mean mug in charge there. I called on him, told him I was an old college pal of yours, and tried to borrow a dollar. He spurned me with contumely—so much of it, in fact, that I imagine you have a number of such friends. While he was abusing me, I stole from his desk the stamped envelope which bears to you these tidings of great woe; and while awaiting your reply, be advised that I subsist on the bitter cud of reflection, fresh air and water, all of which, thank God, cost nothing.

Tale Soon Told

My tale is soon told. When you knew me last, I was a prosperous young contractor. Alas! I put all my eggs in one basket and produced an omelet. Took a contract to build a railroad in Honduras. Honduras got to fighting with Nicaragua; the government I had done business with went out of business; and the Nicaraguan army recruited all my laborers and mounted them on my mules and horses, and fed all my grub, and told me to go home. I went. Why stay? Moreover, I had an incentive consisting of about an inch of bayonet — fortunately not applied in a vital spot—which accelerated rather than decreased my speed.

Hurry, my dear Cardigan. Tempest fledets; remember Morfarty—which, if you still remember your Latin, means: "Time flies. Remember tomorrow!" I finished eating my overcoat the day before yesterday.

Make it a hundred, and God will bless you. When I get it, I'll come to Sequoia and kiss you. I'll pay you back some time—of course.

Wistfully thine—BUCK OGILVY.

NEW SAFETY PAPER IS WHITE; all other safety papers can only be made in colors. It is white in other respects. Skilled workmen are the co-operating factor in the purpose of making the same earnings upon their small investments that Big Business makes upon its original investments. They are out for the square deal and a square division of profits, which should be of the Ford, Eastman and Gillette variety. Why?

Each year in the U. S. $300,000,000 worth of fine paper is used for stocks, bonds, wills, deeds, notes, drafts, etc. With an assured business of only $500,000 the first year, New Safety Paper can earn 30% on $1 shares. Some room for expansion—get that!

MOTOR ISSUES ARE STRONG

Oils Are Weakest Group, While Steels Are Irregular at Noon

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were weak in New York at noon but the prices had worked upward a little from the lowest level of the forenoon. There was no rallying except in the case of motors. They became strong as a group, while oils remained weak and steels had no definite trend.

Aside from motors, there were a number of strong issues, including Chrysler and American Locomotive. Stocks to show the largest losses were Mexican Petroleum, Royal Dutch, Texas American, Sinclair, Atlantic and Pan American, California Packing, Endicott Johnson, General Motors preferred, Pacific Tel., Virginia-Carolina Chemical, Shell Transport and Middle States. They had receded from one to four points three points.

Call money renewed at 10 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were higher, demand sterling advancing to $3.52, francs 4 13-16 and lire to 5.60. The stock market was quiet, first hour transactions totalling less than 100,000 shares. German marks were quoted at .9148.

OPENED WITH DECLINES.

Declines were the rule at the opening, prices coming off as soon as the stock exchange got under way. Oils were weak and Middle States the weakest oil. It ragged four points within a few minutes. The professional continued for about half an hour before there was enough buying to steady the market at the end of an hour prices averaged a little above the lowest.

Steels were a little higher as a class at the outset, but yielded when the best attack became general. Motors were irregular at first and showed some realization on profits. But they recovered soon. Rubber showed the most strength in this group in early trading. General Motors recorded more than two points quickly. For the nine months ended with September last year this corporation reports a profit of $58,640,000 after charges and Federal taxes.

Business in coppers was rather confined last night. The former were rather weak and the latter showed little change to substantial loss. Tin and metal buying is understood to have diminished. A few issues held gains, while the list in general was on the down grade. Rails, including American Can, Atlantic Gulf, Cuba Cane and Westinghouse.

TRADERS BLAME BANKERS.

Many speculators were inclined to blame bankers for the stock market situation, claiming that the latter is now in the best condition known in months and that they are taking a stand on technical grounds at least if a little more leeway is allowed regarding loans. Call money has also added to tension and resistance upon time loans being quite strong in the demand for money when the supply of funds is being restricted. Banking opinion in general appears to be that the crisis will be tighter for awhile instead of easier. The high renewal rate this morning caused more pessimism in lending circles. It was remarked that if liquidation had not been so thorough and stocks now so strongly held a sharp break in prices could scarcely be prevented. Apparently the public is very little involved in the market at present.

25 Billions for Farmers

The high cost of living greatly added to the income of farmers last year, 1919 crops, animals and the products of the latter yielding a return of almost twenty-five billion dollars. The estimate of the Department of Agriculture is $23,342,000,000, an increase approximately $2,300,000,000 over the total for the preceding year. There are six million farms in this country and an average was quoted this represents about $4,000 as the average revenue for each farm.

PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON

Trading Dull on Exchange and Active in the Curb Market

Starting steady the Boston market was irregular all the morning and also dull. No change in the local trading situation could be found. High money rates, low foreign exchange quotations, weakness in New York and some minor factors all served to retard speculation on the home exchanges and to increase the disposition to watch events and await developments. Carson Hill was weak, receding more than two points during the forenoon, while Superior & Boston, which was also active, showed a small gain. The other issues showed any animation. The market was narrow and the price range small.

Among stocks to recede a point or more were Western Manufacturing and General Electric. Fractional losses were shown by Mayflower, Old Colony, U S Smelting, United Shoe, Ohio Body, National Leather, Swift International and Walworth.

Libby advanced a point on sales, which was the gain at the opening for Boston Elevated and United Drug preferred. Both lost part of the advances. Fractionally higher issues included Mohawk, Davis, Daly, Elder, Massachusetts Gas and Ventura.

TRADING ACTIVE ON CURB.

The curb market had a rather active opening and Arizona, Tip Top, a new issue, was the early feature. It opened at 50 cents and advanced to 70 cents during the first hour. One hundred and twenty-five thousand shares of this stock changed hands in less than sixty minutes.

Among strong issues at mid-morning were Arizona Extension, up 3 points at 16 cents, Imperial 1 cent at 32 cents and Pilgrim 2 cents at 20 cents.

Among declines were Verde Mines 2 cents at 38 cents, White Oil a point at 26 and Nimms 2¼ at 30. Gilliland 2¼ at 42¾.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Boston Edison Illuminating Company is soon to issue bills in a month and now owns 502 preferred.

It is learned publication states that the Kendall Company of the Perfection Fire and Rubber Co. is expected to total 500,000.

Articles of association were approved by the United Electric Co. are at a rate approximating $300,000 a year. The incorporation is expected to issue new stock at par to meet the $2,000,000 bond issue of $1,500,000 maturing in July next.

Within the last seven months of 1919 Mullin Body earnings were at the annual rate of $3.75 per share on common. Its cash on hand at the end of the year were equivalent to $18 a share on common. Total net assets are figured as equalling $25 a share on that stock. The plant is reported

GERMAN COLONY FOR MEXICO

Ex-Crown Prince to Head Advance Guard from Fatherland in Spring

Hermosillo, Mex., Jan. 29.—Friedrich Wilhelm Hohenzollern, erstwhile Crown Prince of Germany, is coming to Mexico in the Spring for the purpose of establishing a German colony in the State of Queretaro, according to Rudolph Miahelmer, former attache of the German Legation in Mexico City.

Prince Oscar, another son of the ex-Kaiser, Miahelmer says, will follow Friedrich Wilhelm across the Atlantic to establish himself in Salvador, where German agents have recently acquired large plantations.

Large tracts of fertile land in the vicinity of San Cristobal, Queretaro, Miahelmer says, have been inspected by German agents, who now hold options on the land. The former Crown Prince, he said, is to go direct to Mexico City, where he is to be the guest of President Carranza for some time. Queretaro, capital of this State, is where Emperor Maximilian was executed.

Sweeney of Westerly, who was advanced to the Supreme Court. The withdrawal of Superior Court Judge Chester W. Barrows left the field clear for Judge Sweeney.

Two Faces—Choose

Civilians Run Army and Navy—FORTUNATELY

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

ADMIRAL SIMS. SECRETARY DANIELS.

What a man IS shows in his face. Strength and weakness, resolution, timidity are written in the eyes, mouth, nose, chin and wrinkles. By looking at a face you can tell what has been going on in the mind back of it and above it, just as you can tell by looking at wet sand what kind of birds have been walking on it.

Here are two faces interesting to the American people. The two are having a discussion that might be more accurately described as a knockdown and dragout fight.

As you look at these two faces have you any doubt that in the long run Mr. Daniels will do the knocking down and dragging out?

These faces make you realize what a good idea it is to have a civilian, chosen by the people, through the President, at the head of the army and the navy. A mistake may be made, and often is, but it can be remedied.

In the case of Josephus Daniels, the country editor, who fought an autocratic judge in his home town and fought all the grafters trying to rob the country during the war, no mistake was made.

If a man worked his way up through army or navy to the head of either branch of service, length of service, not ability, would do the choosing, and the army or the navy would be ruled not by the public choice, but by some gentleman from West Point or Annapolis, who had been for years deceiving himself with the theory that all virtue is dressed up in uniform.

You notice perhaps that in the history of the war's grafting Secretary Daniels has no place. Newspapermen in Washington when they went to Secretary Daniels' office did not find grafters or patriot-seers from Wall Street cluttering up the lobby. That collection of patriots was to be found in other offices in Washington where the stealing was better.

One more look at the face of Daniels and you will understand why the makers of torpedoes, possessing a monopoly, made feeble efforts to charge Daniels twice too much and made a fair price when Daniels said to them, "Accept my price or I will take charge of your factory next Monday morning."

It is a good thing to have civilians running the army and the navy, for, unless they are ridiculous old gentlemen, they don't insist on going to fight themselves; they think about the people's welfare, not about personal glory.

'Hands Across the Sea' and a Knife Between the Ribs

The master of an American ship of an American company trying to operate a line of ships between Atlantic ports and Latin-America writes to the American from Buenos Aires:

As a constant reader and a great admirer of the 100% Americanism of your newspaper, I am sending you two newspapers published and owned by British interests, so that you may see what British propaganda is doing to American trade in these South American countries.

The article dealing with American steel refers to the inferiority of the American product as compared with that of British manufacture, causing so many more railroad accidents in the United States, owing to defective rails. This, they point out, is due to the superiority of the English rails, etc.

In the Buenos Aires Standard of Sunday, December 14, 1919, you will note our British brothers quote the opinion of Senor Peras, First Secretary of the Colombian Legation in London, on the Monroe Doctrine; crediting its conception to a British statesman and suggesting its consignment to the scrap-heap, etc.

They hint also that the United States is the nation that these South American countries will have to fear in the future—we being scheduled to play the part of Germany in the next great world conflict.

All this is British propaganda, pure and simple, to poison the minds of these people against America and American goods; and to injure our trade with these countries as much as possible.

All this goes to show England's attitude toward the nation whose intervention in the great war made the victory of the allies possible.

The article on British vs. American steel, by the Sheffield correspondent of the Economist, is reprinted in the Buenos Aires Standard of November 20, 1919. After pointing to the rising costs of American steel production and the falling off in our exports, it adds:

Almost the world over big engineers and other consumers display a marked preference for British steel. We have only to consider for a moment the appalling number of derailments on American railroads owing to defective steel rails to see the real significance of quality in steel. American railroad engineers are loud in their complaints about American steel.

There was no complaint from British sources when our railroads, from January 1, 1918, to November 1, 1919, without a single serious derailment, moved 13,446,559 soldiers, sailors and marines, filling 18,000 special trains comprising 213,749 railroad coaches and Pullman cars.

Certainly there was no complaint when more than two millions of these fighting men were being rushed across to save the British whose backs were "against the wall," as General Sir Douglass Haig said.

It is only since the armistice and more especially since the discovery that America was not keen to underwrite British imperialism that the flaws in our rails loom into killing proportions.

Great Britain has recently created an Overseas Trust with a capital of two hundred and fifty million dollars to stimulate her trade in South America, and last week arranged a loan of two hundred and fifty million dollars more to Belgium to stimulate her trade with Belgium and its colonies.

These immense investments of half a billion dollars by Great Britain to promote her own interests have been facilitated, if not made possible, by the action of the United States Government in relieving England of paying interest for the immediately ensuing years on the four billion dollars of loans which the United States is made to her.

ON OUR car.
IN LOWER seven.
WHEN SHE goes to bed.
AND IN section seven.
WHEN SHE'S sitting up.
THERE IS a young woman.
AND AS soon as I saw her.
I SAID to my wife.
"I KNOW that girl.
"I THINK I met her.
"OUT IN San Francisco."
AND, ANYWAY.
IF MY wife answered me.
I DON'T know.
AND IT didn't matter.
BECAUSE ALL the time.
I KEEP jabbering away.
AND IF she answered.
EVERYTHING I said.
SHE'D GET so tired.
SHE COULDN'T travel.
BUT I was sure.
I KNEW the girl.
AND WHEN I'd go by.
WHERE SHE was sitting.
I'D TAKE a good look.
BUT NEVER once.
DID SHE look at me.
WHICH WAS quite all right.
BECAUSE I'M growing old.
AND LESS desirable.
YEAR AFTER year.
BUT, ANYWAY.
I KEPT rubbering at her.
AND TURNING the leaves.
OF MY memory book.
AND LOOKING at faces.
AND THINKING of names.
AND DISCARDING faces.
AND DISCARDING names.
UNTIL, AT last.
I CAME to one.
THAT I used to know.

WHEN SHE was a kid.
ABOUT TWELVE years old.
AND I hadn't seen her.
FOR YEARS and years.
AND FROM where I sat.
I COULD see the face.
IN SECTION seven.
WITH ITS two blue eyes.
ON THE page of a book.
AND THE eyes were the same.
AND THE nose was the same.
AND THE hair was the same.
AND I said to my wife.
"I'VE GOT her at last.
"SHE'S THE Thompson girl.
"WHO LIVED on the corner.
"BELOW OUR house."
AND MY wife said she wasn't.
AND WENT on reading.
BUT I was sure.
AND AFTER lunch.
I WAS walking by.
AND SHE looked up.
AND I stopped in my tracks.
AND SAID to her.
"I BEG your pardon.
"BUT IS your name Thompson?"
AND WHATEVER she said.
I REALLY don't know.
SHE WAS Swedish or something.
AND COULDN'T speak English.
AND HAD just come over.
AND MY wife was right.

I THANK you.

French Women Are Best Lovers, Says Mrs. Glyn

FRENCH women are ideal lovers, says Mrs. Elinor Glyn, thus confirming the secret fears of thousands of American girls whose sweethearts served in the American Expeditionary Forces! Mrs. Glyn, in her fascinating serial, "My Secrets of Love," written for the Boston Sunday Advertiser, is now turning her attention to the lover-like qualities of the women of different races.

The characteristics which make French women preeminent in love, the famous authoress declares, are their point of view, their freedom from antagonism to man and the fact that they are brought up to think that marriage and having a suitable family are the chief aims of their sex. The French girl's greatest ambition, she explains, is to fit herself to be a practical, intellectual and emotional mate for man.

This instalment, the eighth in Mrs. Glyn's series, appears in Sunday's Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The Austrian government is planning to sell the immensely valuable art treasures of the Hapsburgs, the dethroned Imperial family, in order to save the Austrian people from starvation. Collectors are hailing the decision as the opportunity of a lifetime. The minimum sum required by the government is $50,000,000.

Untold misery has for months existed in Austria within a stone's throw of the princely wealth of the Hapsburgs. Austria has decided to sacrifice its art to its stomach. The story of the wonderful opportunity which American collectors are to have appears in full in Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Was there in far distant prehistoric times a vast continent —a continent covered with great forests, threaded by deep rivers, studded with tremendous mountain peaks and dotted over with stone cities? An article, extremely interesting to scientist and layman alike, appears in Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The Sunday Magazine of the Boston Sunday Advertiser this week contains a full account of latest developments in the New case and also gives our readers an opportunity to test themselves by taking the famous army psychology tests. A whole page of them is given. Order your Boston Sunday Advertiser at your newsdealer early in the week. Otherwise the chances are that you will be unable to obtain a copy on Sunday.

Letters to the Editor

Foreigners Help Clean Up

Editor Boston American:

May I, as a foreign born resident of the South End, reply to Mr. Randolph Wellford Smith's article entitled, "The South End Kitchen for the Poor?"

In the first place the settlement houses in Boston have not done all they advertise to have accomplished. In the neighborhood of Denison House, for instance, it has been the foreigners themselves who have "cleaned up" the district into which they have entered. The Syrians, for example, who are the largest group in the Denison House district, have bought up the property, improved it and this without the help of outside influence. Today it is only those houses still owned by Americans which can be said to be unfit for habitation.

We have held our peace for years and have hoped that workers with modern methods would realize and remedy their mistakes without complaint from the neighborhood. While the intention of the settlement workers may be of the best they so frequently back both tact and judgment that the good which they really do is often counteracted, and they almost invariably overestimate their own influence on the community.

A group of Syrian people asked me to write this. I am a native in one of the American universities and as I live with the people I feel that I can speak for them.

NAZERA TRADD.

Hudson Street.

THIS GIRL OUGHT TO STOP THE AFFAIR

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

"I AM eighteen years old," she writes, "and I have had the pleasure of falling in love."

It is an odd expression, "the pleasure of falling in love." Falling in love is an emotional experience which few persons escape at one time or another; but it is usually considered as much pain as pleasure, with all its consequent doubts and uncertainties, its hopes and despairs.

And the rest of the girl's letter does not bear out the optimism of her first statement. She goes on:

"While working in a certain office, I met one of the salesmen, who asked to take me out. He is very nice, and I went. I have been going out with him now for several months, and I find that I am very much in love with him. He is considerably older than I am, but he also loves me and has told me of his feeling for me.

"Recently, though, he has mentioned that he is already married. He says, however, that later on he will get a divorce from his wife, and that then we will be married."

This gentleman may not be good, but he is certainly careful. He waited all these months until he was sure that you cared for him, and then he casually dropped his bomb right on the top of your head, leaving it to cleave through to your heart and explode there.

Time to Use Sense

Youthful innocence is all very lovely in its place, but it may be unduly prolonged. Its place is evidently not in an office where strange men of whose life history you know nothing are apt to ask you to dine or to go to a play with them, and where you are apt to yield to your inclinations and accept their invitations.

Further along in your letter, you ask: "Mrs. Woodrow, what I want to know is is: Do you think it advisable or me to wait for this man or to try and forget him, which I know would be very hard? I have not seen him for about ten days, and I long for him more and more. When I do not see him at least once a week I lose my appetite and get very melancholy."

I think that if you decide to wait for him, you may as well settle down to a good, long "wait"—a probably forever "wait."

Divorce Talk Vague

You observe, also, that although he talks vaguely about getting a divorce, it is always in the future tense; and as time goes on, and the novelty of talking you about and making love to you wanes, that divorce will recede farther and farther into the dim horizon. All sorts of difficulties will arise, and you will no doubt be told of many reasons why it cannot immediately be secured.

People talk lightly about getting divorces, but they are not so easily achieved. It is not exactly a simple process, and usually requires time and the expenditure of considerable money.

If he is breaking up his home, or has a good reason to do so, that is his affair; but don't you be an accessory to it. Even if you ultimately married him, how could you be sure of his unstable affections? Two, three, four years, and he would probably be serving you in the same way that he has served his present wife.

Break the affair off, my dear, before he has a chance to do so.

Science Notes

Portable apparatus to take power from an electric railroad overhead wire that a Californian has invented makes its contact with a plate that permits a trolley wheel to pass over it without removal.

The sides of a new suit case fold out flat with the bottom to enable clothing to be packed in it without wrinkling.

By turning a crank at one corner a new kitchen cabinet is raised or lowered to the most convenient height for a user.

English surgeons have invented a device to measure in degrees registered on a scale the movement of knee, elbow and other joints.

A recently patented container for cigarette tobacco and papers is waterproof and contains a card for the owner's name and address.

What About Ghosts? Are They Real? Certainly. You Are One Ghost Your Neighbor Is Another

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1920.

George Hamby, wholesale, cold-blooded bank robber and murderer, sat in the Sing Sing death house last night consulting his Ouija board.

Today, if plans are carried out, Hamby will be strapped to a chair with an electrode on his head, another on his leg. A terrific electric current rushing through his body, will end his life and answer questions that the Ouija board does not answer.

While Hamby is dying, thousands of others will go out of the world with him, more than thousands will come in. Of those born today probably some will commit murder and be executed, some will be useful citizens and respected. All will go after a certain number of years.

Where do they go, whence do they come? This is a question "Ouija" does not answer. Why does one baby grow up to die in the electric chair, another to be buried with honor and much mourning? Is the difference in the soul or intelligence of the new-born child, or is it a physical difference in the brain, the machine through which that soul works? How much is settled at birth? How much depends on surroundings and education?

Nobody blames a rattlesnake for the poison in his fangs. When he bites, he must poison, being made that way. No one blames the powder, if a cannon bursts and kills the gunner. A cannon better built would have protected that gunner. Nobody, going through a prison understanding the misshapen skulls, low foreheads, heavy jaws, weak shifting eyes, blames the unfortunate spirits dwelling in those badly made bodies.

The first thing is to give a child a chance from the day it is born, and the mother a chance before the child's birth.

Mr. Rinn offers five thousand dollars to Dr. Hyslop or anybody, that will, under scientific conditions, prove the existence of spirits or spirit communication. Dr. Hyslop says he is talking to Dr. Hodgson through a medium.

Mr. Rinn has the last letter written by Dr. Hodgson locked up in his safe, and offers five thousand dollars if Dr. Hyslop's medium can get Dr. Hodgson's ghost to tell what is in the ghost's own letter. The medium won't do it unless by arrangement with Mr. Rinn.

Spiritualistic phenomena, when sincere, represent self-hypnotism. It pleases many whose lives are dull, to listen with credulity to the pitiful drivel of alleged distinguished ghosts, and, with profit, many exploit this nonsense.

The universal as visitable to human beings, is made up of matter, force and spirit. Spirit to act must have force and matter upon which to exercise that force. That is why people wisdom, that has no time to fool away on hysterical mediums, ties up the spirit in a material body, with power to use force on matter and thus realize itself.

If you could "isolate" the ghost of Michael Angelo as scientists isolate the comma-shaped bacillus, that ghost would probably have in it all the paintings of the Sistine Chapel, the wonderful marble David, the bronze Pieta and the dome of St. Peter's. But until you give Michael Angelo's ghost a body and supply that body with chisel and hammer, or paint brush and paint, you have no picture and no statue.

If matter and force were not necessary to manifestation of spiritual power, if spirit could talk to spirit, imaging landscapes, harmony and beauty without time or space, Divine Wisdom wouldn't have taken the trouble to make the universe with its suns, planets, comets and nebulae. The whole universe might have been the size of a pinhead, with a central god, and all the spirits occupying no space, inside that pinhead, talking their heads off.

Don't waste time on spiritualism unless you are absolutely sure your time isn't worth anything. In the latter case enjoy yourself.

What strange foolishness sends men to ignorant, illiterate, fraudulent mediums in search of ghosts and spirits? For all of us, as Carlyle says in "Sartor Resartus," are but ghosts dressed up" talking to each other for a little while here, then vanishing. You who read this had to be carefully selected a few years ago and will have none a few years hence. You are only a ghost temporarily "materialized."

The doctor who takes a new baby out of the realm of nowhere and starts it going, interests an intelligent man more than the swindling medium rising a bell over the top of a cabinet, hammering a most earthly banjo or giving a falsetto interpretation of some message from a child ghost.
